

LINDBERGH BABY FOUND MURDERED; BODY HIDDEN NEAR MOUNTAIN HOME

Condon and Curtis Will Be Delivered To the Prosecutor

"Jafsie" and Norfolk Intermediary Are Being Brought to Hopewell, Where They Will Be Questioned by State Police and Then Given to Prosecutor.

LINDBERGH AND SHIP BUILDER RUSH HOME FROM "CONTACT"

Text of Ransom Note Left in Nursery Will Not Be Made Public But Will Be Used in Prosecution; Ask John Doe Warrants.

HOPEWELL, N. J., May 13.—(Friday)—(AP)—Colonel H. Norman Schwarzkopf announced early today that John F. Condon, of New York, and John Hughes Curtis, of Norfolk, Va., "will be at these headquarters in a few minutes for questioning in connection with this case and they will be turned over by the police authorities at this point to the prosecuting authorities" this morning.

Colonel Schwarzkopf apparently was acting in conjunction with county prosecuting authorities in an effort to assemble all pertinent information regarding the kidnapping which might be made the basis for grand jury action.

After Colonel Lindbergh had paid the supposed kidnappers $50,000 through Condon it was generally believed that positive identification of the child had been established through a piece of its sleeping garment obtained from the kidnappers by Condon. Added importance was given this belief when discovery of the body today showed the sleeping garment the baby had on when he was kidnapped had been removed, indicating more strongly that Condon had been negotiating with the real kidnappers.

It was pointed out clearly in the case that prosecution of the kidnappers, when and if they were apprehended, might be facilitated by obtaining John Doe indictments in advance.

Several hours before Colonel Schwarzkopf spoke regarding Condon and Curtis it was known that he had summoned the county prosecutor to his headquarters at the Lindbergh home.

The intermediaries in the case had been permitted the widest latitude by officials in their activity on the basis that the first concern of the police was the safe return of the infant.

Thus it was regarded likely that the intermediaries might have in their possession certain confidential information which was automatically made privileged by the finding of the baby's body.

Condon, retired educator, and Curtis figured in the case as intermediaries seeking the return of the kidnapped Lindbergh baby. Colonel Schwarzkopf did not amplify his statement regarding them in any particular.

"The ransom note," said Colonel Schwarzkopf, "is not available and the prosecuting authorities have classed it as important evidence and have ordered it should not be made available to the press."

"Betty Gow was at the Trenton morgue and stated that the body resembles the Lindbergh baby."

"No footprints were found in the vicinity of where the baby's body was located."

"This whole territory was thoroughly scoured by investigators from this office, even to the extent of scraping the surface of the ground around the place where the body was found, putting it all in containers and bringing it to these headquarters for the purpose of check and analysis."

Colonel Lindbergh is known to have paid $50,000 through Dr. Condon to the supposed kidnappers of his son but it never was announced whether the efforts of Mr. Curtis off the Virginia coast entailed the expenditure of any funds by the flyer.

Apparently Colonel Lindbergh and Mr. Curtis were hastening here together. At Norfolk, Va., it was learned Curtis had communicated by telephone with his home there, saying he and Colonel Lindbergh had been informed of the finding of the child's body. Information at Norfolk was that Curtis and the colonel had been together near the New Jersey coast pursuing negotiations for the baby's return.

Reichers Hops Off On Flight to Paris

NEWARK AIRPORT, NEWARK, N. J., May 12.—(AP)—"Lanky" Lou Reichers hopped off tonight at 10:42 (eastern standard time) on a projected two-stop flight to Paris, just eight days short of five years after Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh made his epochal dash across the Atlantic. Reichers, 31-year-old speed flyer of Arlington, N. J., had as his immediate objective Harbor Grace, Newfoundland. After a quick refueling there he planned to hop for Dublin, Ireland, where he will take on his second load of fuel. The third hop will be the Dublin-to-Paris hop. He announced his intention was to reach Paris in about 16 hours, less than half the 33 hours and 29 minutes used by Colonel Lindbergh in his non-stop flight on May 20 and 21, 1927.

'Jafsie' Is Silent On Tragic Climax

NEW YORK, May 12.—(AP)—Dr. John F. Condon, the retired public school teacher who acted as intermediary for Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh in his search for his kidnapped boy and who paid $50,000 to men whom he and the colonel supposed were the kidnappers, remained secluded in his Bronx home tonight. He refused to see newspapermen and through Al Reich, the former boxer who acted as his chauffeur part of the time he conducted the negotiations for the baby's return, said he knew nothing of the case. Dr. Condon, better identified in the Lindbergh case as "Jafsie," was busy writing a lecture and could not be seen, Reich said, adding a husky demand that the newspapermen "take the gate."

PROBERS ARE TOLD OF $26,535 GIFT TO MAYOR WALKER

Donor of Bonds Reveals Transaction by House Financing Transportation Company.

NEW YORK, May 12.—(AP)—The searchlight of the Hofstadter investigation turned squarely on Mayor James J. Walker today with the assertion he had accepted a gratuity from a Wall Street firm while in office.

The inquiry into his financial affairs began when Counsel Samuel Seabury produced testimony that he had received in November, 1929, a gift of bonds with a market value of $26,535 from a brokerage house involved in the financing of the Parmelee Transportation Company.

J. A. Sisto, member of the firm of J. A. Sisto & Co., testified he sent Walker 13 bonds of the Hi-Grade Food Corporation, 10 of the Reliance Bronze & Steel Corporation and 10 of the Parmelee concern, representing part of a profit of $87,960 he made on a sale of Corden Oil stock.

Mayor Astonished.

Mayor Walker, meeting him some time later, thanked Sisto, the witness continued, and appeared "astonished" that he should have remembered what he called a vague promise to "take the mayor in" on his dealings in Corden Oil at Atlantic City five months before.

Sisto, who refused to sign a waiver of immunity but promised he was "willing to help you in any way," described a meeting with the mayor and several others in an Atlantic City hotel room in June.

The witness then was questioned as to their talk about Corden Oil. Sisto said he purchased and sold 1,000 shares of Corden Oil with the determination "that I would try to make him (the mayor) some money."

He subsequently transmitted the bonds to the mayor, the witness continued, because the tight money market at the time—a month after the stock market crash—would have made any other procedure embarrassing.

Bonds Instead of Cash.
John P. McKoon, a close friend of the mayor, was brought into the testimony when Counsel Seabury attempted through examination to establish that Sisto had discussed the profit meant for the mayor with McKoon. "Did you tell Mr. McKoon that it would be best to keep the money in the form of bonds?" Sisto asked McKoon in view of the conditions if Mr. Walker invested the money in bonds that you were endeavoring to sell, instead of taking cash," he was asked. "I don't know if I told Mr. McKoon that," he replied, "but I do know that from our own business viewpoint, I thought that would be preferable." Sisto closed his testimony with a statement that he had anticipated a profit of about $250,000 on a $5,000,000 Parmelee bond issue his firm was underwriting and an additional profit from distribution of the company's common stock. It was intimated that the stock market debacle spelled the end of these profits.

WORLD COURT VOTE CONGRESS TO RUSH TO BE POSTPONED KIDNAPING BILLS

Sponsors of Root Protocol Win Committee Approval But Deem It Wise To Delay Decision.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—(AP)—Victorious in winning approval of the new plan for World Court adherence, sponsors of the Root protocol today decided to wait until next session before seeking a senate vote on ratification.

Amended to include the original reservation, banning advisory opinions affecting the United States, which blocked adherence in 1926, the resolution of ratification was adopted by the foreign relations committee, 11 to 9. It contained the following language proposed by Senator Reed: "With the clear understanding of the United States that the Permanent Court of International Justice shall not, without the consent of the United States, entertain any request for an advisory opinion touching any dispute or question in which the United States has or claims an interest."

The court issue reaches the senate at the climax of the urgent domestic legislative program. As a result a paradox immediately developed with friends of adherence proposing postponement until next session and opponents calling for immediate action. Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, the leader of the court forces, presented the resolution for ratification. Scanning the crowded senate calendar, he observed after the committee victory:

"It looks as though there is no probability of getting up the resolution in the senate now because of the urgent domestic legislation. We will endeavor to get an agreement for its consideration early in the next session."

Chairman Borah, of the committee, long a foe of American adherence to the court, washed his hands of the proposition after the committee vote, turning over to Senators Walsh and

Will Make Transportation of Kidnaped Persons Punishable by Death.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—(AP)—Determination that kidnappers of the future shall be forced to cope with relentless federal laws echoed through congress today as highest officialdom expressed the nation's grief at the Lindbergh tragedy.

President and Mrs. Hoover were among the first in the city to have the sorrowful news that the baby had been found dead relayed to them, and aides of the chief executive immediately communicated with New Jersey for full official information.

Plainly showing his deep feeling, Vice President Curtis said, "they have my deepest sympathy, and my most heartfelt condolences go out to the bereaved mother and Colonel Lindbergh and to their families in their sorrow; it is a most shocking thing."

In both houses of congress, meanwhile, it was forecast that federal anti-kidnaping laws soon would be passed.

Legislation is pending before the senate judiciary committee to make interstate kidnapping subject to federal jurisdiction, and Chairman Norris said it would be enacted.

"It is too awful to talk about," the Nebraska republican said in commenting on the Lindbergh case.

Representative Cochran, democrat, Missouri, author of a bill to make transporting of abducted persons across state lines a capital offense, said there was no doubt but that his bill would be speedily approved.

He explained that the house judiciary committee, before which the bill is pending, had been completely cooperative at all times but had mutually agreed that it would be better not to press the legislation until the Lindbergh case was closed.

"The mothers of this country will never be satisfied until they know the United States government is solidly

DEMOCRATIC PLAN ON JOBLESS AID BACKED BY HOOVER

Tentative Program Calls for Increasing Borrowing Power of Reconstruction Group.

(Copyright, 1932, by The Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, May 12.—(AP)—Administration and democratic leaders worked toward a compromise tonight on a gigantic compromise relief plan involving a new $1,500,000,000 fund for loans by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

President Hoover discussed the proposal and received the support tonight at a conference with republican members of the senate banking committee.

Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the democratic leader, also consulted about the compromise with members of the democratic steering and policy committees tonight but conclusions were postponed pending further conferences tomorrow.

The most gigantic peace-time relief proposal would provide $250,000,000 to $300,000,000 for direct loans to states for unemployment relief and other millions to aid construction work.

"It is proposed," said President Hoover in an announcement after tonight's conference, "to use the instrumentality of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation which has a nationwide organization by authorizing the corporation either to underwrite or make loans for incoming, producing and self-sustaining enterprises which will increase employment whether undertaken by public bodies or private enterprises."

Aside from the $300,000,000 loans to states, the remainder of the additional fund would be used to finance this public and private construction.

"It is not proposed," said the president, "to issue government bonds. It is proposed to provide the necessary funds as they are required by the sale of securities of the reconstruction corporation and its total borrowing powers to be increased up to $3,000,000,000."

"It is hoped that this further process of speeding up the economic machine will not involve any such sum. But in view of the early adjournment of congress it is desirable to provide an ample margin."

There was every indication of harmony at the republican conference at the White House, although Senator Couzens, of Michigan, who was the first to leave, remarked, "I do my own thinking, that's all."

Senator Watson, of Indiana, the republican leader, expressed confidence that the compromise was advancing to a solution.

Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the democratic leader, who has proposed a $2,000,000,000 bond issue, said after a conference with his colleagues that progress was being made, and "there is general sympathy" for an understanding on the federal relief and construction program. The democrats will meet again tomorrow.

"AUDACITY" OF HOOVER

IS HIT BY WHEELER

WASHINGTON, May 12.—(AP)—Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana, said in the senate today that congress has followed the administration "blindly" this session, "yet the president of the United States had the audacity to criticize congress because of the fact he intimated that we were not going to pass the kind of a tax bill he wanted."

Wheeler referred to the president's recent special message urging the importance of budget balancing revenue and economy legislation.

"If there is any criticism of this congress," he said, "it is that we have followed too blindly this administration. We have followed it on both sides of the aisle."

The Montana count-off on his fingers various measures on which he said congress had followed the president's desires, naming the moratorium, Reconstruction Corporation, federal land bank capitalization and Glass-Steagall bill.

Long-Dead Child Identified by Nurse And by Physician

Negro Finds Decomposed Body of Kidnaped Baby Concealed by Brush and Leaves on Mount Rose Hill Near Lindbergh Country Estate.

HOLE IN FOREHEAD OF CORPSE INDICATES MURDER OF INFANT

Identification of Body Is Effected at Home by Means of Bits of Clothing; Effort Apparently Made To Conceal Evidence of Crime.

HOPEWELL, N. J., May 12.—The stolen baby son of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh was found dead today in the Sourland hills of New Jersey. The child had been murdered.

Blows on the head, inflicted probably on the same March night he was kidnapped from the home of his famous father, caused the infant's death.

The body, lying face down in a hollow and partly covered by leaves and wind-blown debris, was discovered by a negro truckman in a patch of woods less than five miles from the Lindbergh estate.

The body had been struck once on the top of the head on the left side and once on the right below the ear, either blow so violently delivered that it would have caused instant death.

It lay within 75 feet of where linesmen had strung special circuits to carry on worldwide communications in the long and unsuccessful effort to get back the curly-haired infant.

So badly was the body decomposed that it had to be identified by pieces of clothing, bone structures and teeth, and it was impossible to give the police the slightest clue as to exactly what kind of instrument had brought death.

To the Trenton establishment of a county physician came Betty Gow, nursemaid to the child and the last person to see him alive on the night he was stolen 72 days ago, to forge the final link in the identification. She made her identification both from the appearance of the body and the fragments of the child's garments.

The tragic news found the child's mother, in the words of an intimate friend, bearing up with her "usual equanimity." His flying father was absent from Hopewell, presumably off the Jersey coast with J. H. Curtis in a vain attempt to negotiate for the baby's return.

He was communicated with, however, and he hastened toward Hopewell from an undisclosed place.

Whether the child had been killed with calculating purpose by criminals who found it advantageous to them to get rid of the infant or whether he had been struck or thrown from a fast-moving automobile by panic-stricken abductors was a matter of conjecture.

The state's law enforcement agencies sprang to the task of trapping the kidnappers with renewed vigor, Colonel H. Norman Schwarzkopf, state police head, announcing that he already had a gang under suspicion and governor A. Harry Moore contributing the statement that—"every attempt should be made now to find the murderers of the Lindbergh baby."

Significance was attached to a hurried telephone call which summoned County Prosecutor Irwin E. Marshall to the Lindbergh home for a conference late tonight.

Two heavy blows on the head ended the life of the baby, the official autopsy by Dr. Charles A. Mitchell, county physician, disclosed tonight.

The autopsy showed that the skull had been fractured on the left side, the fracture extending from the top of the head to just behind the left ear. The second blow was dealt on the right side of the head just back of the right ear, and left a hole one-half inch in diameter.

It was as if some adult person had held the baby tightly in his arms and deliberately hammered the head with the purpose of causing instant death.

The diagnosis was: "The cause of death is a fractured skull due to external violence."

Dr. Mitchell's report confirmed that decomposition of the body had progressed to the point where it could be surmised that the child had been killed almost immediately after the kidnapping, depending on climatic and other conditions that might have produced such results.

The autopsy also indicated that the body had not been disturbed, probably since it had been buried, although this point was not covered definitely.

Teeth, cranial and other bone formations were given to con-

Akron Continues Journey to Join Tender at Base on Pacific Coast

CAMP KEARNEY, Cal., May 12. (AP)—Hampered by the loss of helium gas, the navy dirigible Akron sailed northward along the California coast tonight on the last stage of an interrupted flight to her base at Sunnyvale, Cal., near San Francisco. The Akron cast off here at 11:40 a. m. (P. S. T.) with a personnel of 56 instead of 80. Two officers and 22 men were ordered off the ship by Lieutenant Commander C. E. Rosendahl to lighten the load for the northern trip. An ample supply of helium to replenish the gas cells of the dirigible awaits the sky queen at Sunnyvale and aboard the fuel carrier Pakota in San Francisco bay.

The Akron was ordered to remain behind when the fleet left San Francisco today for maneuvers at sea. Four thousand gallons of fuel and 4,000 gallons of water were taken on by the dirigible during its mooring here. Just before the departure, Lieutenant Commander Rosendahl was summoned before a naval court of inquiry into the deaths of Robert Edgall and Nigel Henton, ground crew men. The hearing on the fatalities was secret.

MRS. OWEN'S VOTE PLAN DECLARED ILLEGAL

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., May 12.—(AP)—The prohibition question cannot be legally and officially brought to a vote by referendum in Florida in the November general election, in the opinion of Attorney-General Cary D. Landis. The proposal was suggested by Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, fourth district congresswoman, who is campaigning for re-election on a referendum plank. Informed of the attorney-general's opinion, Mrs. Owen said that when she made the suggestion she was not acquainted with the legal technicalities involved, but at the same time she expressed the belief that it was the proper way to get the question before the people. The attorney-general cited the state law providing for a general election ballot carrying only the names of official names of nominees of political parties and questions of constitutional amendment which had been referred to the electorate by the state legislature. Mrs. Owen today sent a telegram to Mark Wilcox, who will oppose her in the June primaries, asking him to meet her in joint debates in Jacksonville, Miami and West Palm Beach.

a large number of residents of the ninth ward, and it was announced afterwards that an intensive drive will be launched for Drennon's re-election in the city primary May 25. Chief among topics discussed were policies affecting taxpayers of the city. Mr. Drennon's past record was indorsed, and in a brief address he pledged his continued efforts to serve his community. Among those present were B. H. Bellinger, R. R. Jennings, H. A. Barnwell, N. I. Miller, W. Y. Freeman, E. G. Paulin, John H. Moore and Howard Haile.

Lafayette today introduced two resolutions on repeal. One resolution asked that the electorate of Louisiana be permitted at the November congressional election to vote on repeal of the Hood act, the state prohibition law. The other petitions congress to call a constitutional convention to consider repeal of the 18th amendment to the federal constitution. Senator Harvey Peltier, of Thibodaux, offered a concurrent resolution asking for legislative ratification of the national amendment proposing abolition of the "lame duck" session of congress.

ANNUAL CONCERT OF NEGRO COLLEGES SET FOR TONIGHT

Morehouse and Spelman Colleges will give their fifth annual concert under the direction of Kemper Harrell at 8 o'clock tonight in Sisters chapel. Various groups, trained in the music departments of the two institutions, will give an unusually interesting selection of numbers. The mixed chorus will sing the spirituals, "Talk About a Child," by Dawson, and Nathaniel Dett's "I'll Never Turn Back No More." The Morehouse quartet will also render several of the favorite negro melodies. The orchestra will offer the Symphony in B Minor, Schubert's Unfinished Symphony. This symphony reveals music that will be familiar to everyone. Among other pieces on the program are Tchaikovsky's "None But the Lonely Heart" and "Jesu Christ, Elect of Sinner," by Grieg, both mixed chorus numbers. The Morehouse Glee Club will sing Protheroe's "A Moorish Serenade," and the orchestra, with Josephine Harrell, a Spelman College junior, at the piano, will render the "Hungarian Fantasy" of Liszt.

MISSISSIPPI NEGRO HANGED FOR MURDER

GREENVILLE, Miss., May 12.—(P)—Eddie B. Weeks, 24-year-old negro, was hanged by the state in Washington county jail today for the murder last November of Walter Davis, 31-year-old negro. An orderly crowd of about 500 negroes gathered outside the jail yard during the execution, the first legal hanging in the county in 15 years.

HARTSFIELD WILL SEEK SEAT IN LEGISLATURE

Former Alderman Announces Candidacy for Place Now Held by McRae.

William B. Hartsfield, former alderman and former mayor pro tem. of Atlanta, Thursday announced his candidacy for the legislature from Fulton county to succeed William G. McRae, who will not be in the race for re-nomination. Hartsfield's announcement is subject to the democratic primary of September 14. He is regarded as the father of aviation in Atlanta, having been chairman of the first aviation committee of council, which selected Candler field as the site for the municipal airport. He also was chairman of the bridge committee of council which negotiated with railroads for construction of the Pryor street and Central avenue viaducts. He pledged himself to an economic administration of the government and to curtailment of county and municipal expenses.

Text of his announcement follows: I hereby announce my candidacy for the legislature from Fulton county, in the place formerly occupied by W. G. McRae, who is not offering for re-election. I have lived in this county my entire life and have been asked to make this race by many people who are familiar with my former public record. If elected, I pledge myself to a program of rigid economy looking to a reduction of the tax burden of the state, county and the various municipalities therein. My record in the Atlanta city government some years ago will disclose a constant fight against extravagance, unwarranted purchases and piling up of the public debt. For many years almost every session of the legislature has left Fulton county paying still more of the cost of running the state, if elected I do not purpose to sit quietly in my seat while further burdens are being placed on our county. The state occupation taxes are no framed as to place the greatest burden on the merchants and business interests of Fulton county. If elected, I pledge my best efforts to remove this injustice. Citizens of Fulton county have paid millions of dollars into the treasury of Georgia for highways all over Georgia, yet our county has received practically nothing from this source. After being taxed to the limit for the benefit of state highways, we are then taxed again for our own county road system, a large part of which should have been paid by the state in the first place. I pledge my best efforts to end this double burden on our citizens by whatever means it may be best accomplished. I further pledge the people of that portion of our county formerly comprising Milton and Campbell counties and the Roswell district, full co-operation and support in all matters for their benefit. Due to the enlarged size of Fulton county and its tremendous population, we are certainly entitled to a senatorial district of our own with a senate representing Fulton county at every session of the legislature. Instead of having to rotate with other counties as at present, if elected, one of the very few bills I will introduce will be a constitutional amendment creating this district; to be submitted to the people of Georgia, who I believe will be fair enough to give us this representation. There are many other issues of vital importance to Georgia and to Fulton county which I purpose to discuss later in speeches over the entire county, in the press and over the radio.

The car which police said was driven by Mrs. Gebhardt, crashed into a traffic light at Charles street and University parkway.

MRS. HOOVER LEAVES FOR MIDWEST TONIGHT
WASHINGTON, May 12.—(P)—Mrs. Herbert Hoover will leave Washington tomorrow night for Wooster, Ohio, where she will receive on Saturday the seventh honorary degree of her career. The degree, known as "literarum humaniorum doctor," will be conferred by Wooster College in recognition of her work in social service.

Family of Girl Who Took Poison Aided by Chest for Last 10 Years

Report that Miss Marie Housley, 17, of 112 Short street, who drank poison in her home Tuesday afternoon, was driven to the act by hunger and that help had been refused them by relief societies brought an investigation Thursday by officials of the Community Chest and the Emergency Relief committee with the revelation that the family has received constant attention and help from these agencies over a long period.

The statement that this or any other Atlanta family in need has been refused help is without foundation," said Mrs. Mabel E. Curry, manager of the unemployment relief headquarters at 23 Pryor street, N. E. "Far from being neglected or overlooked, the circumstances of this particular family have been the object of concern for some time, and every possible help has been extended."

Irish Bachelors Face Heavy Income Levies

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, May 12.—(AP)—Irish bachelors found themselves threatened today with grievously increased tax burdens, proposed in the new Free State tax bill introduced last night in the Dail Eireann.

Under a new income tax schedule which calls for a general increase in rates, a bachelor with an income of 300 pounds (about $1,100) a year would pay nearly 19 pounds (about $70) tax, while the good fortune of having an income of 1,000 pounds ($3,870) a year would entail a tax of about $638.

on work relief, our records showing that he has received $96 since the first of this year from that source, besides the frequent grocery orders. The work has been available for him continuously, although he has not reported for assignment for the last two months."

Records of the Chest showed Thursday that the girl is the seventh living child of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Housley, there being six older brothers, of age from 20 to 32 years. Several of these are married, occupied and maintain homes of their own.

At Grady hospital it was reported Thursday that the girl's condition is favorable and that she is likely to recover from effects of the poison. She has expressed regret at her act, according to attendants.

COMMITTEE TO SEEK PLAYGROUNDS FUNDS

A special subcommittee of the finance committee of council was named Thursday afternoon to find $1,500 for operation of summer playgrounds in Atlanta after a delegation of women, headed by Mrs. M. H. Margeson, last year's supervisor, and George L. Simons, general manager of parks, had appealed for them.

Alderman G. Everett Millican, chairman of the parks committee; Alderman Alvin L. Richards and Councilman William T. Knight compose the committee. They will report the results of their investigations to the regular council session Monday afternoon.

More than a score of civic leaders appeared before the committee urging and appropriation as "investment in future citizenship."

The finance committee approved a proposal of Councilman G. Dan Bridges, chairman of the police committee, to give the police station an inside painting job. Work will begin in the recorder's courtroom.

Other routine matters were considered, including approval of a $2,500 contract through which the city is to pay that amount to the Atlanta freight bureau for services rendered to the city.

The American Farm Bureau Federation, and Prudence Penny (Leona A. Maddy), of the Chicago Herald and Examiner.

TURN A TREAT INTO a Triumph

GLORIFY STRAWBERRY SHORTCAKES WITH CALUMET'S DOUBLE-ACTION!

TO-DAY—make the world's best strawberry shortcakes! The real old-fashioned kind—but with a tenderness, a lightness you've never known before. Fluffy puffs of deliciousness, rich and flaky—spread with butter and topped with juicy red berries. A triumph, indeed, to set on your table.

You'll treasure this recipe, once you've tried it. But this is important—follow each step exactly—and use Calumet Baking Powder. For it's Calumet's Double-Action that makes these shortcakes so gloriously perfect! Calumet, you see, acts twice instead of once. That works a magic transformation. In the mixing bowl, Calumet's first action begins. It gets the leavening started right. Then, in the oven, the second action starts. It carries on the leavening. Up!... up!... it keeps raising the dough—holding each biscuit high and light, till it's beautifully browned—baked to perfection! And that's what happens to every cake or quick bread when you use Calumet. Two actions get on the job and carry your baking right through to a super-delicious, delicious finish!

Extra thrifty, too!—The simple tested recipe given here is a Calumet recipe—specially designed for the Calumet proportion—only one level teaspoon to a cup of sifted flour. A splendid economy for you—thanks to the perfect efficiency of Calumet's Double-Action.

Be bargain-wise—try Calumet! Remember, Calumet brings to your baking superlative success—complete satisfaction—every time. It prevents costly failures. Added to that, Calumet is reasonably priced. That's why, from every angle, Calumet is a real baking powder bargain. Calumet is a product of General Foods Corporation.

INDIVIDUAL STRAWBERRY SHORTCAKES

3 cups sifted Swans Down Cake Flour
3 teaspoons Calumet Baking Powder
1 teaspoon salt

1/2 cup butter or other shortening
3/4 cup milk (about)
2 quarts strawberries, washed and hulled

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift again. Cut in shortening. Add milk gradually until soft dough is formed. Roll 1/4 inch thick on slightly floured board. Cut with 3-inch floured biscuit cutter. Place half of circles on baking sheet; brush with melted butter. Place remaining circles on top and butter tops well. Bake in hot oven (450° F.) 15 to 20 minutes. Crush strawberries and sweeten slightly. Reserve 8 whole berries for garnish. Lindbergh's Baby Found Murdered firm the identification of the child, although the autopsy was purely technical and itself did not try to establish identity.

Dr. Mitchell said there was evidence of a hemorrhage on the inner surface of the left side of the skull at the point of fracture. This would indicate that the blow on the left side of the head might have been the one that actually caused death.

The scalp was so badly decomposed that it was impossible to find any contusions or hemorrhagic conditions external to the skull, Dr. Mitchell added. Thus it was impossible from a diagnostic point of view to aid the police in the hunt for the actual instrument of death. Colonel Schwarzkopf later issued the following emergency bulletin:

"A preliminary telephone report from the county physician indicates that a number of positively identifying characteristics have been discovered in the body found today which would identify it as being the body of the Lindbergh baby.

"Betty Gow (the baby's nursemaid) has positively identified the garments found on the body discovered today as being the garments in which the Lindbergh baby was clothed on the night of the kidnaping. The sleeping suit was not on the baby, but the two shirts on the body have been positively identified by Betty Gow. Mrs. Morrow and Mrs. Lindbergh were at the Hopewell home when it became known that the baby found today was the Lindbergh baby."

"Colonel Lindbergh was immediately communicated with and is on his way to Hopewell now."

"The body was found on the left (southwest) side of the road going from Mount Rose to Hopewell. More than 20 additional troopers were immediately ordered to duty upon the discovery of the facts which have come to light today. Additional men are being detailed also. (In an earlier bulletin Colonel Schwarzkopf said "We have had under suspicion a group of persons suspected of being the kidnapers."

"Information concerning the gang referred to is now being checked and such parts of this as will not interfere with the apprehension of the gang will be revealed in a later bulletin."

The hair of the dead child tallied with the shade of the blond, curly-haired Lindbergh heir, 20 months old when he was stolen.

An undershirt and flannel band furnished a more positive link.

Similar articles of clothing from the Lindbergh baby's wardrobe were brought to this spot from the home. Later the county physician completed the identification of the body of the famous baby for whom hundreds of thousands of policemen in every part of the globe had searched.

Then as police worked feverishly to be sure of their identification, telephone calls in the statehouse at Trenton, N. J.

Reporters were summoned to the Lindbergh estate for an important announcement.

The telephone rang again. It was Colonel H. Norman Schwarzkopf, state police head, who has been the field marshal of the official investigation, calling his superior, Governor A. Harry Moore.

"Colonel Schwarzkopf tells me the Lindbergh baby has been found dead," the governor informed the Associated Press correspondent.

Three hours before (about 3:15 p. m.) a truck bearing four men had stopped on a steep grade between Hopewell and the Lindbergh home. The vehicle halted opposite a wood separated from the road by a small ditch. William Allen, a negro, went into the woods and saw the body.

"The body was pretty well concealed by leaves, dirt and brush," the subsequent forensic examination by Schwarzkopf explained. "Going under the bush he (Allen) lowered his head and as he raised a branch he saw a skeleton on the ground. It was in a bad state of decomposition."

Where Body of Lindbergh's Baby Was Found

The above Associated Press telephoto shows newspapermen and spectators looking at the spot near Mount Rose, N. J., Thursday, May 12, where the decomposed remains of Charles A. Lindbergh Jr. were found a few hours before by a teamster. The baby was kidnaped from his nursery in the Lindbergh home, five miles away, March 1, 1932.

DEAD BABY FOUND NEAR MOUNT ROSE

HOPEWELL, N. J., May 12.—(AP) Mount Rose, near which the body of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh's son was found, is a hamlet of about half a dozen houses and a general store, on the road connecting Princeton with Hopewell and about a mile and a half from the latter.

During part of the time that his Soudland mountain home was under construction Colonel Lindbergh lived in a house in the hamlet.

The village of Hopewell lies between the Lindbergh home and the scene where the body was found. The dirt road leading from the house crosses the paved highway, which is also the main street of Hopewell, within the limits of the town but about eight city blocks from the center of habitation. This road leads into Mount Rose, but it is virtually untraveled.

The road to Princeton turns off Hopewell's main thoroughfare one block from the postoffice and center of the town. Along that road, within the city limits, the kidnapers would have had to pass several blocks of residences.

The fact that the body was found off the Princeton road, and between Mount Rose and Hopewell, indicated that the child was driven directly through Hopewell.

Mount Rose lies near the top of a long sloping hill, from which, in clear weather, the approach to Princeton is visible. Along parts of this route, which is asphalt at that point, fairly thick clumps of wild woods come within 10 to 15 yards of the road. The state of wilderness was indicated by the fact that small animals, such as foxes and skunks, were seen from time to time crossing the highway at night at that point.

The woods in the vicinity however, were not combed at night when Colonel Lindbergh and the New Jersey state police searched through the underbrush, immediately after the kidnaping. They were seen from a considerable distance from the home.

It was along this road that the emergency telephone lines into Colonel Lindbergh's home were strung, partly on poles and partly on the ground. The road was the principal connection between Hopewell and the Lindbergh home.

Ships at sea had been searched. A New Jersey state police officer had been sent to Europe to pursue one phase of the inquiry there.

Wild tips came to the Lindbergh estate by mail and cable from almost every nation on the globe. Special translators were employed to handle the foreign mail that poured in when the investigation was at its height.

One peak in the long-drawn-out search came when it was learned that Dr. John F. Condon, aged New York educator, on April 2 had paid $50,000 ransom money, as an agent for Colonel Lindbergh, to a man in the shadow of a Bronx (New York city) cemetery.

This development followed a long series of communications between Dr. Condon and men who represented themselves as agents of the kidnapers. Some of his communication was by notes and the rest through a series of newspaper advertisements which Dr. Condon signed with the name of "Jafise."

Finally, convinced he was in contact with the actual kidnapers, he paid the money. He later said Colonel Lindbergh himself sat in a car a block away while the money, in bills of small denomination, passed hands.

The colonel and some of his associates immediately left for the Massachusetts coast, where Dr. Condon said the receiver of the ransom had said the baby would be found.

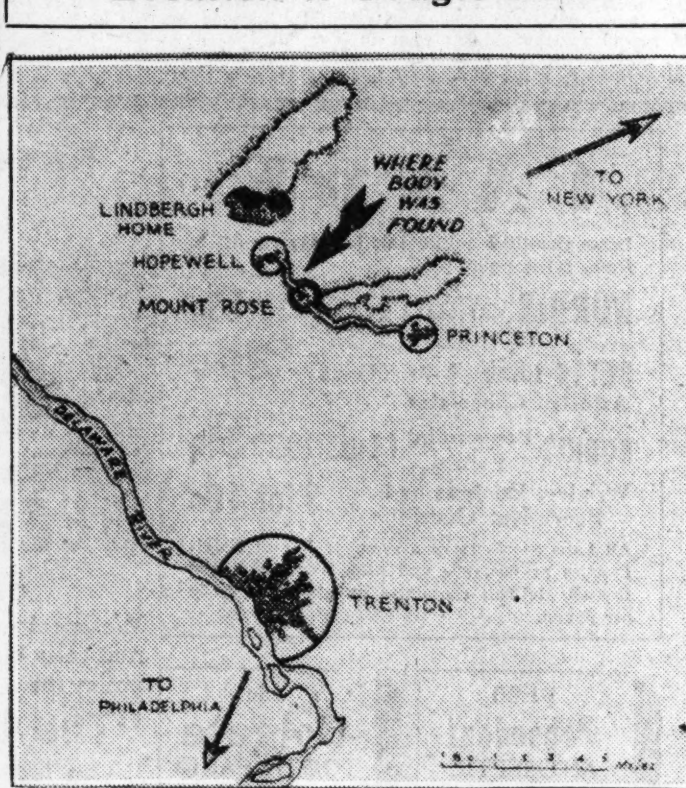

Two days of futile search followed. Finally, convinced those who received the money were not going to live up to their part of the bargain, Lindbergh gave a list of the serial numbers of the bills to the treasury department.

The numbers were sent far and wide. Some of the bills were reported found, but the discoveries did not lead to the kidnappers.

Meanwhile, three other intermediaries—a retired admiral, a clergyman and a shipbuilder—were making diligent efforts in Norfolk, Va., to establish contact with men they believed the abductors.

After frequent mysterious trips by plane they announced they had succeeded, but their hope of bringing about the child's return grew bright only to dim again as weeks wore on.

Location of Tragic Find

Finders of Body Tell Story

HOPEWELL, N. J., May 12.—(UPI)—Orville Wilson, one of the men who found the body of the Lindbergh baby, disclosed tonight in an interview with the United Press the circumstances surrounding the discovery of the child's remains.

"William Allen who was with me on a truck, went into the woods about 75 feet from the road," Wilson said. "He saw the body and called to me. I went over and saw it."

"When I saw the body, it was lying face downward and badly decomposed. It made me feel terrible and sad for Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh."

"When we examined the body more closely, it appeared as if the child had been thrown under the bushes and a hurried attempt had been made to cover the body with leaves and grass. There was a small piece of clothing—dirty and rain-soaked—resting in the small of the back. The spot where had tried to hide it behind the ticket, there was no evidence of a band around the child's stomach, such as was supposed to have worn when kidnaped."

"We stayed at the spot but a few minutes. Then we ran down the hill and drove back to Hopewell, where I reported to Charley Williamson, the police chief. He got the state police and Allen went back with them and they took the body away."

"About 5 o'clock they called me to the Lindbergh home to tell how we had found the body. I have a little grandson just a few months older than the Lindbergh baby was when kidnaped. I know how sad the Lindberghs feel."

The interview was in Wilson's house in Woodville, about three miles from Hopewell in the Soudland hills. His wife and their married daughter sat nearby.

HOPEWELL, N. J., May 12.—(AP) William Allen, 46-year-old negro, tonight gave the following account of how he discovered the body of the Lindbergh child:

"After I got into the woods, I went under a branch and looked down. I saw a stick sticking up out of the dirt, which seemed to have been kicked up around it. I thought I saw a baby, with its foot sticking out of the ground."

"I called Williams (Orville Williams, his companion), and he came into the woods. I said 'I think it's a baby.'"

"He said: 'Well, what are you going to do about it?'"

"We stopped at Hopewell and after looking around for Charley found him in the barber shop."

"I said: 'Could you talk to me for a couple of minutes?'"

He said: "Sure," he'd talk to me for five if I wanted to."

"Williamson went and got the state police. He took me back to the truck and after I delivered the load of

FINDING OF BODY HORRIFIES NATION

By the Associated Press.

Sorrow throughout the nation yesterday as news was flashed of the finding of the body of Charles A. Lindbergh Jr.

Grief and horror were expressed in official Washington where the President and Mrs. Hoover were the first to be notified.

Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, maternal grandmother of the dead infant, was at the Lindbergh home with her daughter. The baby's other grandmother, Mrs. Evangeline L. Lindbergh, received the news shortly after reaching her classes in Technical High school in Detroit. Her brother, C. S. Land, said his sister was shocked and had "nothing to say."

General Jay J. Morrow, brother of the late Dwight W. Morrow, appeared badly shaken when informed the baby had been found. He was at Englewood, N. J., and declined to make a statement.

Mayor James J. Walker interrupted a radio broadcast in New York to announce the discovery of the body. After expressing his horror at the news he pledged the 18,000 police of New York to ceaseless duty in tracking "the most miserable scoundrels in the annals of criminology."

Aides of President Hoover were dispatched to New Jersey for official information and the bureau of investigation of the justice department said its agent would help in every way in tracing the kidnapers.

Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, said "it is too awful to talk about."

Rear Admiral Guy H. Burridge and the Navy Rev. H. Dobson-Peacock, Norfolk, Va., intermediaries in the kidnaping case, said they had no comment to make. John Hughes Curtis, another intermediary, said he had no word to recovery of the baby.

GEN. MORROW REFUSES TO MAKE STATEMENT

ENGLEWOOD, N. J., May 12.—(AP)—General Jay J. Morrow, brother of the late Dwight W. Morrow, father of Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, appeared badly shaken when informed the Lindbergh baby had been found dead.

He declined to make a statement.

blocks I had on the truck I took him to the road where we found the baby. The baby was about 45 feet back from the road. After I showed it to Charley he went and got some state policemen and I drove my truck back home and went to dinner."

"After I got home, Williamson and some plainclothesmen came and got me and took me to Lindbergh's house. When I got there they asked me a lot of questions, like what time I saw the baby and where I saw it and all about it."

"Then they brought me back home and I ain't had no dinner yet."

"I just hope they get the man that did it. Nothing would be too bad to do to him."

Allen, who lives in a plain little house with his wife and five children, jugged the two youngest Allen babies slowly on his knee as he related his story.

He said he didn't "want no reward for finding the baby; he just wanted to keep his job."

Chronological History Of Lindbergh Inquiry

By the United Press.

March 1, 1932—Charles Augustus Lindbergh Jr. kidnaped from his crib on the second floor of the Lindbergh home on Soudland Mountain near Hopewell, N. J., between 8:30 and 10 p. m., the kidnapers leaving a note behind demanding $50,000 ransom.

March 2—International search begins for the kidnapers; Lindbergh ready to pay the $50,000 demanded.

March 3—Search continues with little progress; Lindbergh taking personal charge.

March 4—Colonel Lindbergh issues public appeal to the kidnapers to return the baby, guaranteeing he will not prosecute.

March 5—Crime experts meet secretly at governor's office in state house at Trenton and advise governor and his assistants on best methods of procedure with respect to the kidnaping search.

March 6—Colonel Lindbergh in public statement names "Salvy" Spitalale and Irving Bitz, of New York, as his "go-betweens."

March 7—Henry "Red" Johnson, sweetheart of Miss Betty Gow, Lindbergh nursemaid, detained at Hartford, Conn., brought to Newark for questioning.

March 9—Colonel H. Norman Schwarzkopf announced whole object of state police investigation is to obtain return of child alive; Mrs. Lindbergh suffering under strain of kidnaping case.

March 10—Lindbergh reportedly made three mysterious trips away from home; discussed in state trooper's uniform; Mrs. Lindbergh took short walk; first in three days, supported by Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, her mother, and Mrs. Henry Brockmeyer.

March 11—More than 2,000 communications received by Colonel Lindbergh relative to the kidnaping case, coming in at the rate of 300 a day. Henry Johnson arrested for immigration authorities.

March 18—Man arrested in Pocatello, Idaho, claims to have driven motor car used by kidnapers. Story later disproved.

March 19—Johnson taken to Lindbergh home and questioned.

March 20—Fact that Rev. H. Dobson Peacock, Rear Admiral Guy H. Burridge and John Curtis negotiating with men they believe to be kidnapers is revealed at Norfolk, Va. Negotiations on since March 9.

March 28—Despite storm, Rev. Peacock flies to Lindbergh home from Norfolk and assures reporters he has been ordered to push his negotiations.

April 2—Police announce they have leads which definitely have withstood investigation.

April 3—Lindbergh away from home and absence connected with visit of seaplane from Martha's Vineyard, off Massachusetts coast.

April 4—Lindbergh flies away from New Jersey in own plane and plane subsequently seen over Martha's Vineyard sections. Lights on in nursery for first time since kidnaping.

April 10—Lindbergh reveals that, after negotiations through "Jafise" advertisements in New York newspaper, aided by Professor J. F. Condon, he had established contact with kidnapers, having made many secret trips from Hopewell home.

May 3—Lindbergh away from home for several days.

May 8—Gaston B. Means arrested in Washington, accused of framing Mrs. Edward B. McLean of $100,000 on contention he could recover baby.

May 10—An attempt to extort more money from Lindbergh disclosed, but plot frustrated.

May 11—New "Jafise" note, saying "Money is ready," appears in newspaper.

May 12—Colonel Schwarzkopf announced baby found dead.

Later all this became clear as additional news came in from Hopewell.

One thing was known, however—that was the first time since the night the child was stolen away from its parents' home in the desolate, brooding Jersey hills, it was certain the kidnapers had made many secret trips away. Instead it became apparent that the little fellow had been murdered shortly after he had been taken from the nursery window into a waiting car. It became known for the first time that while hundreds of crack New Jersey state police held conferences and dashed about the countryside in automobiles and motor cycles and while other police searched distant countries, the body of the baby was lying almost within rifle shot of the Lindbergh home. Still later the bitter truth came to light that the police, in laying special telephone wires across the country, had passed within a few steps of the murdered child. And as it lay for weeks in the wind-stripped bushes, with dead leaves piled up about it by a rising wind, the little body was very close to the wires over which excited, hopeful telephone messages were being sent. "Jafise" tugging at its heart. The nest up on the lonely hillside is empty. The little eagle is dead.

It was incredible, too horrible for belief. Stunned by verification of what they had hoped was only another of the many hoaxes which had been received with incredulous eyes. Some cried out in a fierce, righteous surge of anger. What sort of people were these creatures, could they steal a sick baby from its little bed and leave it to die in the wild, wind-swept hills, or brutally take its life.

Some cried out in a fierce, righteous surge of anger. At first all the questions could not be answered. Reasonators of the many hoaxes instruments of the Associated Press might office in The Constitution building clattered with the sad news, while automatic telegraph machines brought in paragraph after paragraph of details. But at first it was known only that the world's most famous baby was dead. At that time it could not be definitely said whether it had died of exposure or had been slain.

Crib From Which Baby Was Taken

Copyright, The News, New York. From Associated Press Photos.

The above is first and an exclusive photograph of the crib in the nursery of the Lindbergh home from which Charles A. Lindbergh Jr. was taken by his kidnaper-killer on March 1. The blankets are ruffled probably as the parents saw them when they rushed into the room on the night of the kidnaping to find their child had been stolen.

Lindbergh's Baby Found Murdered

firm the identification of the child, although the autopsy was purely technical and itself did not try to establish identity.

Dr. Mitchell said there was evidence of a hemorrhage on the inner surface of the left side of the skull at the point of fracture. This would indicate that the blow on the left side of the head might have been the one that actually caused death.

The scalp was so badly decomposed that it was impossible to find any contusions or hemorrhagic conditions external to the skull, Dr. Mitchell added. Thus it was impossible from a diagnostic point of view to aid the police in the hunt for the actual instrument of death. Colonel Schwarzkopf later issued the following emergency bulletin:

"A preliminary telephone report from the county physician indicates that a number of positively identifying characteristics have been discovered in the body found today which would identify it as being the body of the Lindbergh baby.

"Betty Gow (the baby's nursemaid) has positively identified the garments found on the body discovered today as being the garments in which the Lindbergh baby was clothed on the night of the kidnapping. The sleeping suit was not on the baby, but the two shirts on the body have been positively identified by Betty Gow. Mrs. Morrow and Mrs. Lindbergh were at the Hopewell home when it became known that the baby found today was the Lindbergh baby."

"Colonel Lindbergh was immediately communicated with and is on his way to Hopewell now.

"The body was found on the left (southwest) side of the road going from Mount Rose to Hopewell. More than 20 additional troopers were immediately ordered to duty upon the discovery of the facts which have come to light today. Additional men are being detailed also. (In an earlier bulletin Colonel Schwarzkopf said "We have had under suspicion a group of persons suspected of being the kidnappers.")

"Information concerning the gang referred to is now being checked and such parts of this as will not interfere with the apprehension of the gang will be revealed in a later bulletin."

The hair of the dead child tallied with the shade of the blond, curly-haired Lindbergh heir, 20 months old when he was stolen.

An undershirt and flannel band furnished a more positive link. Similar articles of clothing from the Lindbergh baby's wardrobe were brought to the spot from the home. Later the county physician completed the identification of the body of the famous baby whom hundreds of thousands of policemen in every part of the globe had searched.

Then as police worked feverishly to be sure of their identification, telephones rang in the statehouse at Trenton, N. J. Reporters were summoned to the Lindbergh estate for an important announcement.

The telephone rang again. It was Colonel H. Norman Schwarzkopf, state police head, who has been the field marshal of the official investigation, calling his superior, Governor A. Harry Moore.

"Colonel Schwarzkopf tells me the Lindbergh baby has been found dead," the governor informed the Associated Press correspondent.

Three hours later (about 3:15 p. m.) a truck bearing four men had stopped on a steep grade between Hopewell and the hamlet of Mount Rose. The vehicle had been a small truck, William Allen, a negro, went into the woods and saw the body.

"The body was pretty well concealed by leaves, dirt and brush," the subsequent formal statement by Schwarzkopf said. "The body was found under the bush he (Allen) lowered his head and as he raised a branch he saw a skeleton on the ground. It was in a bad state of decomposition. The body was found about 75 feet from the road, in a clearing, and was found by the body of the Lindbergh baby."

The discovery of the body in this clearing was the first step in the reaction of Governor Moore was expressed tersely:

"The body was found about 75 feet from the road, in a clearing, and was found by the body of the Lindbergh baby."

Mount Rose is a hamlet of five houses, about a general store. The Mount Rose road is a little-traveled cross-road between Princeton and Hopewell.

The discovery of the body in the very countryside where the kidnapping took place followed more than two months of whirlwind investigation.

Ships at sea had been searched. A New Jersey state police officer had been sent to Europe to pursue one phase of the inquiry there.

Will tips came to the Lindbergh estate by mail and cable from almost every nation on the globe. Special translators were employed to handle the foreign mail that poured in when the investigation was at its height.

One peak in the long-drawn-out search came when it was learned that Dr. John F. Condon, aged New York editor, on April 2 had paid $50,000 ransom money, as an agent for Colonel Lindbergh, to a man in the shadow of a Bronx (New York city) cemetery.

This development followed a long series of communications between Dr. Condon and men who represented themselves as agents of the kidnappers. Some of his communication was by notes and the rest through a series of newspaper advertisements which Dr. Condon signed with the name of "Jafie."

Finally, convinced he was in contact with the actual kidnappers, he paid the money. He later said Colonel Lindbergh himself sat in a car a block away while the money, in bills of small denomination, passed hands.

The colonel and some of his associates immediately left for the Massachusetts coast, where Dr. Condon said the receiver of the ransom had said the baby would be found.

Two days of futile search followed. Finally, convinced those who received the money were not going to live up to their part of the bargain, Lindbergh gave a list of the serial numbers of the bills to the treasury department.

The numbers were sent far and wide. Some of the bills were reported found, but the discoveries did not lead investigators any nearer to a solution of the mystery or discovery of the child's whereabouts.

Meanwhile, three other intermediaries—a retired admiral, a clergyman and a shipbuilder—were making diligent efforts in Norfolk, Va., to establish contact with men they believed the abductors.

After frequent mysterious trips by plane they announced they had succeeded, but their hope of bringing about the child's return grew bright only to dim again as weeks wore on.

Where Body of Lindbergh's Baby Was Found

The above Associated Press telephoto shows newspapermen and spectators looking at the spot near Mount Rose, N. J., Thursday, May 12, where the decomposed remains of Charles A. Lindbergh Jr. were found a few hours before by a teamster. The baby was kidnapped from his nursery in the Lindbergh home, five miles away, March 1, 1932.

DEAD BABY FOUND NEAR MOUNT ROSE

HOPWELL, N. J., May 12.—(AP) Mount Rose, near which the body of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh's son was found, is a hamlet of about half a dozen houses and a general store, on the road connecting Princeton with Hopewell and about a mile and a half from the latter.

During part of the time that his Sourland mountain home was under construction, Colonel Lindbergh lived in a house in the hamlet.

The village of Hopewell lies between the Lindbergh home and the scene where the body was found. The dirt road leading from the house crosses the paved highway, which is also the main street of Hopewell, within the limits of the town but about eight city blocks from the center of habitation. This road leads into Mount Rose, but it is virtually untraveled.

Coming from the Lindbergh home, the kidnappers could have gone into Mount Rose along that road, turning there onto the macadam and asphalt road leading into Princeton, about seven miles away. The only other manner in which they could have reached Mount Rose from the Lindbergh home, without taking the circuitous route through Stoutsburg and doubling on their tracks for the greater part of a mile, was to pass through Hopewell.

The road to Princeton turns off Hopewell's main thoroughfare one block from the postoffice and center of the town. Along this road, within the city limits, the kidnappers would have had to pass several blocks of residences.

The fact that the body was found off the Princeton road, and between Mount Rose and Hopewell, indicated that the child was driven directly through Hopewell.

Mount Rose lies near the top of a long sloping hill, from which, in clear weather, Colonel Lindbergh's home about four miles away is visible. Along parts of this route, which is asphalt at that point, fairly thick and wild woods come within 10 to 15 feet of the road.

The wilderness was indicated by the fact that small animals, such as foxes and skunks, were seen from time to time crossing the highway at night at that point.

The woods in the vicinity however, were not combed at the time that Colonel Lindbergh and the New Jersey state police searched through the underbrush, immediately after the kidnapping. They apparently were considered too far from the kidnapping scene.

It was along this road that the emergency telephone lines into Colonel Lindbergh's home were strung, partly on poles and partly on the ground. The road was the principal connection between Hopewell and the trunk highways leading from New York, and was used constantly by police officials, and by Colonel Lindbergh himself.

When the body was found, it was found by the body of the Lindbergh baby."

Location of Tragic Find

Finders of Body Tell Story

ORVILLE WILSON, HOPWELL, N. J., May 12.—(UP)—Orville Wilson, one of the men who found the body of the Lindbergh baby, disclosed tonight in an interview with the United Press the circumstances surrounding the discovery in the woods at Mount Rose Hill.

"William Allen who was with me on a truck, went into the woods about 75 feet from the road," Wilson said. "In a minute he came running back, shouting: 'My God! I think I have found the Lindbergh baby!'"

"I jumped from the truck and leaped over the fence and ran down a little gulch and up the side of the hill. There I saw the body."

"When I saw the body it was lying face downward and badly decomposed. It made me feel terrible and I ran back to the truck."

"When we examined the body more closely, it appeared as if the child had been thrown under the bushes and a hurried attempt had been made to cover the body with leaves and grass."

"There was a small piece of clothing—dirty and rain-soaked—resting in the small of the back. The spot where the body lay was such a distance from the road that searchers would be unable to find it unless they happened to go within a foot or two of the body."

"A thick layer of laurel was within a few feet of the body. It looked like the person who put the body there had tried to hide it behind the laurel. There was no evidence of a hand around the child's stomach, such as he was supposed to have worn when kidnapped."

"We stayed at the spot but a few minutes. Then we ran down the hill and drove back to Hopewell, where I reported to Charley Williamson, the police chief. He got the state police and Allen went back with them and they took the body away."

"About 5 o'clock they called me to the Lindbergh house to tell how they had found the body. I have a little grandson just a few months older than the Lindbergh baby when kidnapped. I know how sad the Lindberghs feel."

The interview was in Wilson's house in Woodville, about three miles from Hopewell in the Sourland hills. His wife and their married daughter sat nearby.

WILLIAM ALLEN, 46, NEGRO, HOPWELL, N. J., May 12.—(AP) William Allen, 46-year-old negro, tonight gave the following account of how he discovered the body of the Lindbergh child:

"After I got into the woods, I went under a branch and looked down. I saw a skull sticking up out of the dirt, which seemed to have been kicked up around it. I thought 'I saw a baby, with its foot sticking out of the ground.'"

"I called Williams (Orville Williams, his companion), and he came into the woods. I said 'I think it's a baby.'"

"He said: 'Well, what are you going to do about it?'"

"I said 'I guess I'll report it to Charley Williamson (one of the two members of Hopewell's police force).'"

"We stopped at Hopewell and after looking around for Charley found him in the barber shop."

"I said: 'Could you talk to me for a couple of minutes?'"

"He said: 'Sure,' he'd talk to me for five if I wanted to."

"Williamson went and got the state police. He took me back to the truck and after I delivered the load of

FINDING OF BODY HORRIFIES NATION

By the Associated Press. Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, maternal grandmother of the dead infant, was at the Lindbergh home with her daughter. The baby's other grandmother, Mrs. Evangeline L. Lindbergh, received the news shortly after teaching her classes in Technical High school in Detroit. Her brother, C. S. Land, said his sister was shocked and had "nothing to say."

General Jay J. Morrow, brother of the late Dwight W. Morrow, appeared badly shaken when informed the baby had been found. He was at Englewood, N. J., and declined to make a statement.

Mayor James J. Walker interrupted a radio broadcast in New York to announce the discovery of the body. Hopewell in the Sourland hills. The news he pledged the 18,000 police of New York to ceaseless duty in tracking "the most miserable scoundrels in the annals of criminology."

Aides of President Hoover were dispatched to New Jersey for official information and the bureau of investigation of the justice department said its agents would help in every way in tracing the kidnappers.

Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, said "it is too awful to talk about."

Rear Admiral Guy H. Burridge and the Very Rev. H. Dobson-Pentock, Norfolk, Va., intermediaries in the kidnapping case, said they had no comment to make. John Hughes Curtis, their associate, was still away on another mission they had hoped would lead to recovery of the baby.

GEN. MORROW REFUSES TO MAKE STATEMENT. ENGLEWOOD, N. J., May 12.—(AP)—General Jay J. Morrow, brother of the late Dwight W. Morrow, father of Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, appeared badly shaken when informed the Lindbergh baby had been found dead.

He declined to make a statement.

Blocks I had on the truck I took him to the road where we found the baby. The baby was about 45 feet back from the road. After I showed it to Charley he went and got some state policemen and I drove my truck back home and went to dinner."

"After I got home, Williamson and some plainclothesmen came and got me and took me to Lindbergh's house. When I got there they asked me a lot of questions, like what time I saw the baby and where I seen it and all about it."

"Then they brought me back home and I ain't had no dinner yet."

"I just hope they get the man that did it. Nothing would be too bad to do to him."

Allen, who lives in a plain little house with his wife and five children, jogged the two youngest Allen babies slowly on his knee as he related his story.

He said he didn't "want no reward for finding the baby; he just wanted to keep his job."

Tragic Fate of Lindbergh Baby Casts Gloom Over Atlanta

BY WILLIAM O. KEY JR. News of the discovery of the Lindbergh baby's body was received in Atlanta with a heartbroken sob of anguish. Atlanta, which had prayed for the safe return of the curly-haired child with such bright blue eyes; who had followed daily—almost hourly—the news of efforts to make contact with those who had snatched it from its crib, were stunned by the news.

They turned on the switchboard of The Constitution's telephone exchange began to tell the story of the horror with which Atlantans heard the first report, shortly after 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon. Phones rang constantly. Voices strained with fear, choked with emotion, begged to be told it was true. The last shred of hope sounded in the inquiry, "It isn't true, is it?"

Gregory C. Bowden, Atlanta district manager of the Southern Bell Telephone Company, said the traffic peak of the company jumped immediately on receipt of the news here when an anxious public sought confirmation of the reports from news agencies all over the city. Facilities of the company were taxed to capacity by the precipitous and unexpected increase in the number of calls.

These were the voices of people who could not understand how such things as this could happen in a land which boasts of progress and civilization. It was, to them, incomprehensible that human creatures could steal a sick baby from its little bed and leave it to die in the wild, wind-swept hills, or brutally take its life.

It was incredible, too horrible for belief. Stunned by verification of what they had hoped was only another wild rumor, Atlantans hung up their phones with tear-blinded eyes. Some cried out in a fierce, vicious surge of anger. What sort of people were these, they asked, that could do such a thing? And all manner of other questions.

How long had the baby been dead? Had it been cruelly slain outright, or had it been left alone in the woods, cold and unprotected? What were the police doing—had they arrested anyone?

At first all the questions could not be answered. Resonators of the many Morse instruments of the Associated Press office in The Constitution building clattered with the news, while automatic telegraph machines brought in paragraph after paragraph of details. But at first it was known only that the world's most famous baby was dead. At that time it could not be definitely said whether it had died of exposure or had been slain.

Later all this became clear as additional news came in from Hopewell. One thing was known, however—that for the first time since the night the child was stolen away from his parents' home in the desolate, brooding Jersey hills, it was certain the kidnappers had never taken it very far from the home. Fifth District Flower Show Staged Successfully at Atlanta Woman's Club

Mrs. Tom Farrar was the winner of the sweepstakes prize for her exhibit basket of choice perennials at the spring flower show of the Fifth District of the Atlanta Woman's Club held Wednesday at the Atlanta Woman's Club. The judges were Donald Hastings, Mrs. Charles LaRue, Mrs. C. C. Lewis, Schmitt, Maier and T. D. Skidmore.

Atlanta Woman's Club won the prize for the most guests at the spring flower show, which Mrs. Black was a devotee member will close the service with prayer.

The garden, dedicated to the memory of Mrs. Black, who was a beloved character member of the garden club, will be one of the most beautiful spots in this city. At the far end of the garden there is a picturesque pool given by Mrs. Black's sisters, Mrs. Edwin L. Pugh and Mrs. F. W. Blalock. The perennial garden surrounding the pool is joined by a rose garden, where hundreds of these lovely flowers are blooming in a variety of shades. The majority of the plants were contributed and planted by members of the Cherokee Garden Club, with many being transplanted from the garden of the late Mrs. Black, who was an enthusiastic garden lover and was ever eager to share the beauty of her own garden with others. Beautifying the garden, are gay colored sand boxes and other amusement features, where the little patients of Eggleston hospital can convalesce and grow strong in the midst of a herb-giving and restful setting.

The garden was established early in 1931, the first planting taking place under the direction of Mrs. John Holmwood, who, during that year, was garden chairman for the Cherokee Garden Club, and who has ably assisted Mrs. Joel Chandler Harris Jr., present garden chairman of the organization, and members of the club in the completion of the extensive planting. During her lifetime Mrs. Black was intensely interested in the Eggleston Memorial hospital and it was during her administration as president of the Atlanta Junior League that this organization established a downtown tea room to support a ward in this institution, and bears the Junior League name. Mrs. Black was a tireless worker for the Eggleston hospital and to her efforts and interest the hospital made rapid progress in its growth. No more fitting honor could be given her memory than dedicating this beautiful garden to Dolly Blalock Black.

THE WONDERLAND OF OZ

"Where were you going when you met us?" Tip asked the Woggle-Bug. "Nowhere in particular," was the reply, "although it is my intention soon to visit the Emerald City and arrange to give a course of lectures to select audiences on the 'Advantages of Magnification.'" "We are bound for the Emerald City now," said the Tin Woodman; "and, if it pleases you to do so, you are welcome to travel in our company." The Woggle-Bug bowed with profound grace.

"If you are sufficiently rested, let us head our steps toward the Emerald City," he suggested. "We can't," answered Tip. "The Saw-Horse has broken a leg, so he can't head his steps. And the Tin Woodman's axe is so rusty that he can't cut any trees." "Very unfortunate!" cried the Woggle-Bug. "But he looked the party over carefully and said: 'Why not use one of the Pumpkins? It is a good idea for the horse. I judge both are made of wood.'"

"Now, that is what I call real cleverness," said the Scarecrow, approvingly. "Get to work, my dear Nick, and fit the Pumpkinhead's leg to the Saw-Horse. Jack was not especially pleased with this idea, but he allowed the Tin Woodman to amputate his left leg. Nor was the Saw-Horse enthusiastic about what he called being 'lumbered,' declaring as Tip fitted the leg to his body, that the new leg was a disgrace to a respectable Saw-Horse."

"I beg you to be more careful in your speech," said the Pumpkinhead, sharply. "Remember, if you please, that it is my leg you are abusing." "I cannot forget it," retorted the Saw-Horse, "for it is quite as funny as you are." "Friends, I entreat you not to quarrel!" pleaded the Tin Woodman. "We are none of us above criticism; so let us bear with each other's foibles." And then they all advanced in the direction of the Emerald City.

SENATE BODY HEARS BIRTH CONTROL PLEA

WASHINGTON, May 12.—(P)—Birth control to help overcome illiteracy, ignorance and disease was urged upon a senate committee today by Margaret Sanger, its world-renowned exponent, before a room crowded with stylishly dressed women. From the American Federation of Labor the committee received a statement denying support to the bill before it—a measure by Senator Hatfield, republican, West Virginia, to permit interpretation and dissemination by the medical fraternity of contraceptive information, literature, drugs and equipment.

Mrs. Sanger, Hatfield, who is a doctor, a group of professors and Rabbi Edward S. Isaac, of Baltimore, chairman of the central conference of American rabbis, appealed to the committee to report favorably on the measure.

President Green of the Labor Federation said in a statement presented by E. F. McGrady, that his organization could not support the bill because it was not approved by the churches or the medical profession as a whole.

The bill would permit use of the information, drugs, equipment and literature by doctors, hospitals, universities and others properly licensed in some phase of the medical profession.

Mrs. Sanger termed existing laws prohibiting such actions "relics of an outworn concept of morality" and contended that through birth control many social problems could be solved, such as disease, illiteracy and feeble-minded children.

Hatfield made a similar statement, asserting the legislation had "a bold and Spartan-like purpose to prevent mental delinquency so far as it is humanly possible."

Culbertson on Contract

Applying the Brakes.
BY ELY CULBERTSON.
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

When the Dealer, at the Contract table, opens with a Forcing bid of two in a suit, and Second Hand passes, the Dealer is in a position of great responsibility. He may be too conservative, and stop the bidding at game, when a Slam was easily attainable in the bidding, and makeable in the play. On the other hand, he may be too optimistic, and bid for a Slam on playing-tricks, neglecting to take into account tricks that must be lost in the play to adversely held Aces and Kings.

In the recent World Bridge Olympic, held by the National Bridge Association simultaneously throughout the world, more than 30,000 players, for the first time in competition, played the same hands in the same order, with each other. Hand No. 6 was one of a number of the hands opened with a Forcing bid of two in a suit. The responsibility for the reaching of a safe contract on this hand rested with North, for South held a very big hand, and one well calculated to enable him to yield to the lure of a Slam try. The responsibility, in the play, however, comes back to the Declarer, and those who failed to follow the correct principles of hand development, found that their contract, instead of being achieved, was defeated. The hand and bidding were:

Both sides vulnerable.
North-Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

The Bidding:
(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South West North East
2♠ (1) Pass 2NT (2) Pass
3♠ (3) Pass 4♠ (4) Pass
4♠ Pass Pass

1—With two biddable suits and 5-12 honor-tricks, the Opening Forcing bid of two is, of course, clearly indicated.
2—North has no other response.
3—Offering partner a choice.
4—While many players might here bid three notrump, South's Opening bid and his Rebid suggest to North the danger of playing the hand at notrump, as neither diamonds nor hearts are stopped in the North hand, and the bidding has indicated that either suit of these suits or the other is short in the South hand. Game at clubs appears more probable than game at notrump. In order to make the contract of five clubs, an appreciation of the correct principles of play was required. West opened the heart King, and South ruffed the second round of that suit with the Ten. The adverse trumps were drawn in two leads, the second round being won with the club 9, and a heart led from Dummy which was ruffed in the closed hand. The Ace, King and Queen of spades were then cashed, and the losing spade in the closed hand trumped in the Dummy. Thus, both hearts and spades were eliminated from the North and South hands. To the tenth trick, the Ten of diamonds was led from the Dummy, and East naturally covered with the Knave. South played the Queen. West won with the King, but could do nothing then except return the suit or lead a heart, which would permit the Declarer to ruff in one hand and discard in the other.

TODAY'S POINTER.
When the bidding is opened with a Forcing bid of two in a suit, the Responding Hand has a double responsibility. If he holds values that make a Slam probable, he should disclose them to his partner. If his holding is such as to make a Slam well nigh impossible, his first response to the Forcing should be a minimum.

TOMORROW'S HAND.
The bidding and play of the hand pointed out below will be discussed tomorrow.

NEW DISCOVERIES CONFIRM VIRTUES OF BRAN IN DIET

Supplies "Bulk" and Vitamin B for Constipation; Also Iron for Blood

For ten years, now, millions have found Kellogg's ALL-BRAN a safe, pleasant way to overcome common constipation—with the headaches, loss of appetite and energy that so often result from this condition.

Recent laboratory tests show that ALL-BRAN supplies "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and Vitamin B to help tone the intestinal tract. In addition, ALL-BRAN contains twice as much blood-building iron, by weight, as beef liver.

This "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like the "bulk" in lettuce. Inside the body, it absorbs moisture and forms a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes.

Special cooking processes make ALL-BRAN finer, softer, more palatable. It is not habit-forming.

Think how much better it is to enjoy this delicious cereal than to take endless pills and drugs, which often lead to harmful habits.

Two tablespoonfuls daily—in serious cases with every meal—are usually sufficient. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Serve ALL-BRAN as a cereal with milk or cream, or use in cooking. Appetizing recipes on the red-and-green package. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

FRIENDLY COUNSEL BY CAROLINE CHATFIELD

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

For two years I have been engaged to a man that has a frozen heart, the result of a disastrous love affair that was terminated many years ago by the girl's moving to South America. I know I come first with him. I have his confidence. He tells me very frankly what he does, what he thinks, and how he feels. I adore him, have never loved any other man deeply. But he fails completely to give me the warm, satisfying affection that I crave. What can I do to thaw him out? The sense of frustration keeps me in a perpetual state of irritation before the War Between the States he appeared to be struggling to get at him and the more I struggle the more he eludes me. I feel a vast pity for him and sympathy with him, yet I also feel desperately sorry for myself. Can you help me? Can you suggest any method that will yield me the result I want?

LILA.

ANSWER: One of the best proofs of his love that any man can give a woman is the gift of his confidence. One of the highest compliments any man can pay a woman is to give her a peep into his thoughts and into his suffering soul. Do you really care that some people go through life without ever having entered another's life of holies? Do you realize that men and women love, after a fashion, marry, have children, live and die without either one ever being admitted to the other's life of holies? It is a terrible thought, but it is true. And if you have had that rarest and dearest of all experiences, that of touching another heart on the quick, you have had a precious privilege that nothing can rob you of.

We don't mind admitting friends and acquaintances to the penumbra of our lives. That is the partially shaded region around the dark central part of our lives. But only those who love sincerely, trust implicitly, and depend upon absolutely do we admit to the umbra of our lives, the dark and central spot. Any woman that has access to that secret place in a man's heart has nothing to grieve about. She has the pledge of first place in his life. She has the delicious consciousness that nothing can come between them.

The only method you can employ to yield you the desired result is the old one—immolation of yourself, sacrifice of your selfish desire to elicit from the man the identical emotions you experience, and a determined effort to sooth his grief and heal his heart wounds. It is only in that way that you can give him what he wants and it is only in giving him what he wants that you can find what you want. The very fact that a disastrous love affair left such a scar upon him is plain proof that there are depths in his nature, depths which he wants you to sound. But he is sore and tender to the touch, and you can't reach those depths with a probe. You must use that delicate instrument of sympathy, that gentle hand of patience, that tender touch of unselfish affection. With these weapons you cannot fail.

Dear girl, you can pour hot water on a tiny patch of frozen earth and thaw it but the whole frozen earth must wait for the spring and only in its own good time will it come and accomplish the great miracle. Even the arctic regions finally yield under the rays of the melting sun before the year is done, so will your frozen field. In the meantime you must be content with the promise of spring. Do you remember the graphic stories sent out by Russell Owen from the last Byrd expedition? Do you remember the pictures of the men in their huts of ice and snow? They were waiting with what patience they could summon for the return of the sun that would let them out of their dark prison into the light.

They had work to do in connection with their drab existence. They had to cut their maps and chart their courses and make ready for the great adventure. Time passed slowly, monotonously, until one day the light dawned and they got away. So will you some day break down the prison walls that shut in the heart of the man you love.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Memorial to Ernest Hartsock Is Unveiled at Oglethorpe Rites

While the chimes of Oglethorpe University tolled out the noon hour Thursday, a busy bust of a young poet was unveiled—and a concerted and reverent impulse to the assemblage of men and women of letters, poets and students of the university rose and paid honor to Ernest Hartsock, dead in his 28th year.

Perhaps no poet of modern days has received a more fitting homage than the group of several hundred people paid to the memory and work of Ernest Hartsock. There were simple eulogies, brief and beautiful, paid by learned and unlearned poets, and the group of which Hartsock was a member and a greater poet than Sidney Lanier.

Hartsock was the author of a widely read volume of poems, published under the name, having published upward of a dozen poems by—others poets. In the award of the Poet of the Americas with his "Strains of the South" which is the title poem of the book.

The bust will stand in the hall of Oglethorpe University, the institution of which Hartsock was a member.

Oglethorpe and Auburn Battle in Dixie Title Series Here Today; Allen, Smokie Owner, Fights for Deader Ball, Less Players

BREAK of the DAY

Does the little woman sigh now and then and say that it's so hard to think of something different for dinner?

Do the menus seem to you to be always the same old roast, chicken, and hash? Do you ever mention to the little woman the meals that mother used to prepare when your stomach would digest an old shoe and anything tasted good and lives in the memory as ambrosia?

Then try this on your dinner table some evening. Get on the outside of this recipe for burgoo. When the wife goes shopping in the morning go with her and let the grocer wrap up these little items:

800 pounds of good soup meat.
Four dozen fat, sassy squirrels.
24 gallons of corn. (Now, now. Don't be smart and ask if it's liquid.)
Four bushels of Bermuda onions.
240 pounds of hens or fat, young roosters.
15 bushels of choice Irish potatoes.
An even 50 gallons of tomatoes.
Six gallons of pure of tomatoes.
200 heads of cabbage, good and firm. (Like a lot of nogginns you know, good and hard.)
Four gallons of sliced carrots.

And then ask the grocer to put a dozen tubs in the rumble seat.

Now go home. If you haven't got two or three 300-gallon iron kettles borrow them from the neighbor.

You are all set to make burgoo, 1,800 gallons of it. It's a great chance to invite those people over for dinner—you know, the ones you just must ask but keep putting off. It won't matter if they have a second helping.

Burgoo is kind to your Adam's apple. It has less irritation than other brands because of a secret process known only to J. T. Looney, the man who cooked burgoo so well that Kannel E. R. Bradley named the Kentucky Derby winner after him. J. T. Looney, the burgoo king. He's coming to help Jack Malcom out with the police barbecue at Lakewood park May 18.

Credit Jack with a smart publicity stunt. The barbecue tickets will go like hot cakes, or hot burgoo.

At any rate the secret is out. If you don't have a changed menu it isn't the fault of this column of thought. But I still insist a dish of Brunswick stew will make burgoo skiddoo.

THE MYSTERY OF THE EXTRA JUROR.

Someone at the courthouse has lost all idea of economy. The budget is pretty sure to be blown to pieces and finish in the hole.

All because of the extra chair that has been placed in one of the jury boxes. There are 13 chairs. And 12 jurymen. It is no Banquo's ghost who sits in the extra one.

No, sir, Tubby Walton, 360 pounds on the hoof, sits in both of them. The best-known man in amateur baseball circles was chosen on one of the juries. And here's where the economy comes in. Or rather doesn't come in.

The county pays for the meals. And when they take Tubby Walton out he eats two or three chickens and extra side dishes just to get the power to sit and listen to the lawyers argue.

Tubby has originated a new method of jury-sitting. He turns the chair around and straddles it like a country boy on the front porch of the general store. And Tubby Walton finds it easy work and good eating. But the county will be out in the county poor house if they let Tubby eat many more meals.

LO, THE POOR KNOXVILLES.

Knoxville seems to have one of the best last-place clubs in the league. It's something of a mystery, this low standing of the Smokie club. That is it until Bob Allen, one of the best minor league owners, explains it.

"We have had to build from the bottom," he said. "We have some good hitters but our pitching staff is causing some trouble. It requires about three years to build up a good staff. But I'm trying to do it in one. I think we'll get up there soon."

And then Allen disclosed a most amazing situation. His ball club has already played about one-third of its road games. Which means that Knoxville has had but eight home games this season. The Smokies will have a long stay for the finish. But the start has been difficult.

Allen believes the league needs a ball with some of the rabbit taken out of it. His ideas on that are expanded in another story in this section. He also believes that a 16-player limit would be an aid in these times of ours.

Allen has made a success of small towns in the Southern league. He managed to make money at Little Rock. It used to be a great sight to see Bob Allen rushing around his little wooden stands getting a crowd in.

But he made it go. He sold more good young players than any other owner. And he seems to be making a go of it at Knoxville.

ONE EXPLANATION.

The Southern association, as have all other leagues, got off to a bad start in many ways. But the weather was one harmful factor not counted on.

One explanation of the poor crowds was to be seen at the park Thursday. A gentleman was there with a big overcoat turned up about his ears.

And a couple of thousand fans were looking at him enviously.

WHY MANAGERS GET GRAY.

Lou Garland, right-handed pitcher obtained by the Crackers from the White Sox and turned back after a spring trial, is keeping Dallas in the pennant race.

George White, in his column in the Dallas News, says: There have been two outstanding features of this home stand—the brilliant performance of George Murray and Lou Garland. The story goes on to say that Garland has been valuable as a relief man, pulling four games out of the hole in one week.

And while this was going on the Crackers were in desperate need of a pitcher and spending money trying to land one. It was a tough break. While here Garland didn't look very promising.

WELCOME JOE SCHEPNER.

Joe Schepner, manager of the Knoxville ball club, is one of the finest fellows in baseball. If more of them were like Joe the game would be booming again. He's always been square in his dealings and lists as a friend every newspaperman who ever met him.

PETRELS, TIGERS IN TITLE PLAY AT ROSE BOWL

Mitchell Likely To Oppose Williams; Georgia, Tech at Athens.

By Jack Troy.

Milady may have plenty of "it," but as it has been pointed out, the Dixie college league has a superfluity of "it," as the pennant race, narrowed to three teams, breaks into its final stage and dance in two games here and two at Athens today and tomorrow.

There will be no encores; no, not one after the weekend's titanic deciding series. It's positively the final curtain call.

Should Oglethorpe, Auburn and Georgia finish in a three-way tie for top honors the matter would be allowed to rest there, for there is a no small matter of final examinations confronting the collegians. And after that commencement exercises. That's the human thing to do.

UP TO PETRELS.

The schism around which interest centers absorbingly starts at the Rose Bowl field at Tech this afternoon with Oglethorpe meeting Auburn. Champions last year, Auburn can win one of the two games, either today or tomorrow, and retain the championship. But Oglethorpe can oblige, yes, they can take both games and gain a tie for pennant honors.

And Georgia, playing Georgia Tech at Athens, can sweep the two game and also enter the tie. Oh, yes, there is plenty of "it" to go around. Tech is out of the race and Florida's season has ended. It's up to Oglethorpe, Auburn and Georgia just what disposition is to be made of the coveted title.

There is the very real possibility that Auburn may win one game and Georgia two. That would give Auburn the title, of course, and Georgia would finish in second place, Oglethorpe in third. If Georgia and Oglethorpe both should divide the series the two teams would deadlock for the second position, with Florida and Tech finishing in order. If Georgia and Oglethorpe should by any chance lose both games, they would tie for third place, with Florida, having an average of .500, representing four victories and four defeats for the season, finishing in second. Tech has no chance to better its standing.

STARS AT 4 O'CLOCK.

Mitchell probably will pitch for Oglethorpe in the opening game, which starts at 4 o'clock this afternoon. Either Smith or Ripper Williams, sophomore right-hander, who is leading the league in pitching, will take the mound for Auburn.

William last week replaced Mitchell as the leading pitcher. If the two pitch today a gripping battle of curves will result.

There is an imposing array of better than .300 hitters on both teams. Charley George, Oglethorpe's classy sophomore outfielder, is slugging an even .500. Martin, Baker and Whiteley are in the above .300 class.

SCHAFF BOXES GROSS TONIGHT

NEW YORK, May 12.—(UP)—The elephants and trapeze artists departed, the last peanut husk swept off the floor, Madison Square Garden tomorrow night again will open its spacious doors to boxing.

This time the wind-up brawl will bring together Ernie Schaef, rated by many as the next heavyweight champion, and a left-handed young man named Jack Gross.

The outcome is almost as hard to predict as the first of the month. Schaef will win as he pleases. Gross will put up a tolerable front; he's a fair fighter. Schaef is a grand fighter; and that's the difference.

The boxing boys have, among others, two definite legends. One is that Jimmy Johnson is very smart, the other, that Ernie Schaef is not. This time the applications are reversed. Johnson, the Garden's head man, has produced a sour show with which to bring big-time boxing back to New York. Schaef, without losing the part in his blonde hair, will net a cool $5,000.

Americus High Cops League Title

AMERICUS, Ga., May 12.—Americus High won the premier high league championship by defeating Cuthbert yesterday afternoon in the third series game, 27 to 10.

After the score had been tied thrice, the Panthers pulled away from Cuthbert in a stormy sixth inning in which 10 hits produced 12 runs. The eighth inning was almost a replica.

SMITHIES MEET CAETS TODAY IN TITLE GAME

Tech High and G. M. A. To Battle at College Park.

By Roy White.

With the Big Six title at stake, Tech High will meet G. M. A. at 3 o'clock this afternoon on the College Park diamond in the final round of the league schedule. Tech High leads the field with five straight victories, while G. M. A. and Boys' High are tied for second place with three wins and two losses each. Both the Smithies and Caets, however, have two postponed games to be played, but a Tech High victory today will give the Smithies at least a tie for the crown.

Riverside plays Boys' High at Henry Grady field in the other game of the Big Six, as Monroe will be idle.

Decatur and Fulton will furnish the major attraction in the North Georgia Interscholastic Conference race in another game that will have much to do with the final standings. They meet at Almond park at 3 o'clock and it should prove one of the best of the season.

OTHER GAMES.

Other games in the N. G. I. C. are Commercial and Gainesville at Gainesville, and Marietta and Russell at East Point.

Fulton High leads the N. G. I. C. pack with nine victories and one defeat, while Russell with ten wins and two losses holds second and Decatur with eight wins and two losses holds third place. Only those three teams have a possible chance to figure in the pennant race which will not be decided until the final game, which will be played next Tuesday.

The Tech High-G. M. A. scrap at College Park will be well worth the while, as the Caets are out to throw the race into a triple tie if possible and the Smithies with the pennant in sight are out to make it safe through the remaining two games. Tech High will likely send Ed Conrad, the ace right-hander of the league, against the Caets, while G. M. A. will use Mooney in the box.

PLENTY OF ACTION.

Fulton and Decatur likewise will furnish plenty of action at Almond park. Fulton can dim Decatur's hopes for a title with a victory today, while a Decatur victory will throw the race into a merry scramble with next week's postponed games deciding the issue.

SMOKIES BEAT CRACKERS, 10-7

By Jimmy Jones.

The Knoxville Smokies of Herr Joseph Schepner, who have been heralded as a hitting club with spasmodic pitching, didn't have to worry about the latter yesterday in the series opener with the Crackers. For they spotted Atlanta four runs in the second inning and then had enough left to come from behind and fall upon the messengers for a like number in the ninth, which proved a gracious plenty to give them the series opener by a score of 10 to 7.

Only one of the three hurlers employed by David Irenus Barron had any luck at getting the Smokies out and that was young Jimmy Carrithers, who pitched the first nine innings in between the explosion that sent Jess Bream from the box in the fourth and the salvo that greeted Messinger in the ninth.

Bream, who has been one of the Crackers' most consistent workmen this season, held no mystery over Continued on Third Sport Page.

New Cracker Hurler

The first photo of Frank Coleman, new left-hander of the Atlanta Crackers, is shown above. Coleman, who had a fine record with Raleigh, of the Piedmont league, last year where he won 14 games, lost 5 and fanned 173 men, is considered an excellent prospect and sure help for the Crackers by the Boston Braves, who sent him here for further seasoning. Coleman went on the Cracker roster yesterday and Red Barron plans to start him against Nashville in Nashville Sunday. Staff photo by George Cornett.

Rudy Laskowski Ranks As a Real Prospect

Joe Schepner Thinks Third Base Is Lad's Natural Position.

By Jimmy Jones.

They laughed when he went out to play shortstop, but he made them like it.

This is not an introductory line to one of the celebrated Mr. Zilch's exploits or to an Alger novel, but merely a mention of the impression that Rudy Laskowski, 17-year-old Polish youth from Chicago's North Side, made upon some of our leading Southern league scoffers when he broke in over at Knoxville.

They had to loop about five letters off his name to make it fit the box score measure, but Rudy Laski, which was the result of the shrinkage, is making good in a rather boisterous way.

The prodigy of Joe Schepner's infield will not astound you with his grace. Do not go to see him play for any illusions of dazzling swiftness, or willows, rhythmic movement. Young Rudy is built more for ruggedness than for grace—more like the sturdy draught horse than the trim racer. His legs have the shape and solidity of duckpins and his thick, strong body a trend to the lines of a wrestler, such as his illustrious countrymen, the Zbyskos.

But man and boy, Rudy Laski can hit. He lays the old hickory on the ball with a clean hard cut. Not a long distance slugger or a "killer" like Ruth, but just a good, sound hitter. It seems that the boy has always hit above .400. He hasn't played an awful lot of baseball, but his lifetime average is around that figure. He batted .576 in Chicago's prep school league while playing for Lane High and last year he hit .450 on a semi-pro line.

Present Southern league averages reveal that Rudy ranks among the five leaders with a mark of .421 for 27 games. The pitchers may eventually get the number when their curves begin hopping in the warm temperatures of July. But thus far, young Laski shows no sign of cracking, no indication of being a flash in the pan.

The boy is not overly endowed with speed, no wing-heeled Mercury on the paths. But his gift with the bat will carry him far in this day of hitting. Furthermore he has a pair of huge hands, is a

TARZAN AND THE ANT MEN No. 95

J-95

Now to the pounding upon one door was added the noise of similar knocking on the opposite one. Tarzan measured the distance from the floor to the trap in the ceiling. Then with a little jump he sprang lightly upward. He shot entirely through it, alighting on his feet in a dark chamber.

Turning, he looked down at his friends below. The ape-man swung, head downward through the opening, catching the edge of the trap in the hollow of his knees. At the gallery door the knocking was becoming insistent. Angry, a man's voice shouted, "Open! In the name of the king, open!"

Untiring Labor of Colonel Detailed for First Time

The Lindbergh baby kidnapping led to perhaps the greatest—and most confusing—world-wide search in recent years. The trails, many of them false, led through the shadows of the underworld, to the high seas and to far countries. A veil of secrecy was cast over the isolated Lindbergh home in the Soudland mountains and behind that veil the famous flyer and his associates labored day and night. Many reports of their activities trickled out—so confusing and contradictory that they merely increased the mystery of the mountain home. Now, the story can be told and herewith the United Press presents a first-hand picture of the Lindbergh home—house of fears and sorrow and desperation—during the most intensive stages of the search.

By H. ALLEN SMITH.

(Copyright, 1932, by the United Press.)
HOPEWELL, N. J., May 12.—(UP)—Never in the history of America was a private home so quickly and efficiently converted into the directing center of a worldwide search as was Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh's Soudland mountain estate on the day after the kidnapping of the famous flyer's infant son.

The Lindbergh home—a house of sorrow and courage and determination—was transformed overnight and put on a regular "war basis" for the tragic search. Lindbergh himself, those days when the search settled down to a grim race against time, set an example of courageous leadership and of unwavering determination which required even stronger nerve than he demonstrated in his trans-Atlantic flight. After the first hysterical flurry of the kidnapping, the famous flyer and his wife, Anne Morrow Lindbergh, were convinced that the search might be a long one, and, after a conference with the colonel's close associates, Colonel Henry Breckenridge, the military-like organization was installed.

Search Embraces World.

The ramifications of the search spread rapidly into every state, into the international field—Mexico, Cuba, Canada—and finally to Europe.

To meet the terrific problem caused by the flood of mail, telephone, telegraph and radio messages as well as by the constant arrivals and departures of searchers, Colonel Lindbergh called into conference the New Jersey state police leaders, federal service representatives, immigration service police, New York city police and representatives of police of Newark, Trenton, Paterson, Bayonne, Chicago, Detroit and Boston.

On the night following the kidnapping, Colonel Lindbergh told a friend, later, there were more than 50 state, municipal and federal detectives and police sleeping on the first floor and in the basement of the house.

A family organization, geared to care only for six or seven persons, was suddenly expanded to care for three score police officials, many more visitors and others involved in the search.

"On the day after the kidnapping, we not only fed all the policemen and others at the house, but served a cold lunch to about 100 newspapermen and photographers," Colonel Lindbergh said. "We were glad to do it but our equipment was woefully inadequate at that time."

Arrangements were made with the R. O. T. C. at Princeton University, and the messes were moved to the Lindbergh house. A regular staff of state police was installed on three eight-hour shifts. Food was prepared at the police kitchen at Trenton and carried to the Lindbergh home, where it was warmed up. Later the house was more suitably equipped and the commissary began running smoothly.

Wires Increased.

Then came the flood of mail and telephone calls. Every letter had to be read carefully and sympathetically. Many hundreds of letters were read each day. Every telephone call was given attention. At first, Colonel Lindbergh and Colonel Breckenridge attempted to handle the telephone calls by a single circuit to the isolated Lindbergh home was overloaded and long before daylight after the night of the kidnapping was an hour or more long.

The facilities at the Hopewell central office were entirely inadequate and emergency crews were sent in to expand the service. By afternoon the Postal Telegraph Company had leased a temporary office in the Hopewell hotel and the Western Union was expanding their office by bringing in extra operators. More than 100,000 telegraphed words left Hopewell on the night of March 2. More than 500,000 words went out by wire.

But the efforts of communication companies to improve the situation failed to take any burden off Colonel Lindbergh's home until the circuits were run in. By the second night 15 complete circuits were installed at the house and garage. In addition the state police put in a teletype printer telegraph machine, which looked the house directly with the New Jersey state police telegraph system. All of 24 hours a day from the minute of their installation.

At times circuits were cleared of all others and only persons having certain numbers could get through directly to Colonel Lindbergh or Colonel Breckenridge. This was not done in order to approach the kidnappers or make it difficult to reach Colonel Lindbergh, but to make sure that, at no time could a call come through without getting prompt attention.

Mail was handled on about the same basis of a large mail order house. The mail was read by state police, who carefully sorted it out. More than 50,000 pieces of mail bearing on the kidnapping were received during the first 30 days after the baby disappeared.

The first communications had gone direct to Colonel Lindbergh through the regular mail channels. One of these was from persons who convinced the Lindberghs they were the kidnappers. Then for many days it was only through letters that the colonel was able to keep in contact with the kidnappers. It was through this method of communication that the basis for the first agreement bearing on return of the child was negotiated.

The story of how those letters were received and taken by police officers, detailed to read the mail, to Colonel Lindbergh; how the state police famous "Jasfite" advertisements were inserted in a Bronx newspaper will some day be one of the most romantic stories of the case.

At the end of the first month of the hunt, more than 132 separate demands for ransom had reached Colonel Lindbergh. Some of these were amount of work done by the police is illustrated by the fact that each of these communications—some very detailed—were carefully checked.

In addition, there was the regular work of police checking on all possible persons associated with the baby in daily life and on following up on suspects who might have had indirect contact with the child. Probably 1,000 persons were questioned in regard to the ladder which was used to enter the baby's nursery.

The study of finger prints took many days and the police even adopted a new method originating in Germany to aid in bringing out partly obliterated prints.

For a time Colonel Lindbergh and Colonel Breckenridge worked day and night with police—catching only a few hours sleep. Later, however, they determined it was imperative they organize their own part in the search. Colonel Breckenridge took the daylight shift because he could escape recognition in a crowd, and Colonel Lindbergh took the night side. Each day and night they alternated in investigations not far from Hopewell. Sometimes Colonel Lindbergh would remain almost continuously at the telephone for as long as 12 hours, getting reports from as far away as San Francisco, Mexico City, London and Glasgow.

Again, dressed in a gray suit and with a light gray cap pulled down over his eyes, he would disappear in

SO YOU'G O BRING JOY, DESPAIR TO WORLD

HOPEWELL, N. J., May 12.—(UP)—Charles A. Lindbergh Jr., son of the famous flyer and Anne Morrow Lindbergh, was born at 3:15 p. m., June 22, 1930, at the Englewood home of his grandparents, the late Dwight W. Morrow and Mrs. Morrow.

The news of his birth was flashed around the world—to every nation where the aerial adventures of Colonel Lindbergh had made him famous. The infant weighed 7 3/4 pounds. He was born on the 24th anniversary of his mother's birth.

It was not long before the world knew that the tiny boy resembled his father; had curly blond hair and a winning smile. But Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh were determined that he should not be handicapped in life by too much publicity.

Father was more than left in the at first only some snapshots taken by his father—in the files of newspaper offices. Mrs. Lindbergh, a practical, modern mother, was determined that the boy should be reared as normally as possible considering his father's fame.

Charles Augustus Jr. played within the seclusion of the Morrow and Lindbergh homes; took his first tottering steps far removed from the world which was always eager for word of him. Only on rare occasions was there news of the golden-haired child. One such occasion was when his father and mother left him in the care of his grandparents and nurse while they flew away across the northern Pacific to China.

Then, on March 1, the name of Charles Augustus Jr. was flashed around the world for the second time. He had been kidnapped from his father's home in the Soudland hills.

For days the search for him crowded other news from newspaper headlines and brought the sympathy of the world. Many heads were bowed, the headlines faded as the search proved futile. Occasionally news of developments flared up, only to die out again.

Tonight, for the third time, the infant's name flashed around the globe. The "world's most famous baby" was kidnapped from his crib on the quiet mountain top.

GANGSTER, EDUCATOR FIGURE IN KIDNAPING

NEW YORK, May 12.—(UP)—Two of the strangest of many fiction-like phases of the Lindbergh kidnapping involved a New York educator and a powerful figure in the underworld.

Dr. John F. Condon, mild, white-haired instructor at Fordham University, was the educator. Salvatore Spitalo, swarthy, black-haired, a man of authority in various Manhattan speakeasies and known to gangland as a "square shooter," was the second figure to assume an important place in the case.

Spitalo and his henchman, Irving Ritz, came into the case when Colonel Lindbergh announced through the hangouts of professional kidnappers and racketeers in search for the infant. Spitalo replied that he was not. He said he wasn't "no cop" and that he was not willing to negotiate if the kidnappers wanted to avail themselves of his services. They didn't.

Then Dr. Condon came into the picture. For many days there had been appearing in a Bronx newspaper a series of personal advertisements signed "Jasfite"—later said to be Dr. Condon's nickname derived from the phonetic spelling of his initials.

Dr. Condon had known many underworld characters in the course of his social welfare work and he had offered to act as intermediary with the kidnappers. He became convinced that he was in contact with them, and sent to Colonel Lindbergh the communications he had received. The personal advertisements were the chief means of contact.

In this way his negotiations continued for some time and the asserted kidnappers were said to have positively identified themselves. Then "Jasfite" advertised: "I accept. Money is ready."

On the night of April 2, the money was paid—$50,000. It was said that the money was in the hands of Colonel Lindbergh, drove to St. Raymond's cemetery in the Bronx and there, after some complicated maneuvers involving the kidnappers, handed the money through a hedge fence to an unidentified man.

In return he received a note saying the baby was in a found near Gayhead, Martha's Vineyard. Colonel Lindbergh made two trips by plane to the Massachusetts coast, but failed to find the child.

On April 8 another "Jasfite" advertisement appeared. It said: "What is wrong? Have you crossed me? Please, be direct."

But "Jasfite" was no more successful than Spitalo.

His small sedan for midnight conferences in New York, in various parts of New Jersey and elsewhere. Many times when the world believed he was at his home, the famous flyer would be far away on the search. "I only think of one thing," he said then. "There is only one thing I can think about. We must get the baby back."

He was fearless on those trips—perhaps desperately fearless and more determined than the day he left New York on his flight to Paris.

But despite some reports to the contrary, he never resented the activity of newspapermen on the case. "I will never forget the wholehearted and splendid way in which newspapermen have co-operated with our request that they leave the farm and leave us entirely alone," he said. "I am sure no similar request on a story of such wide interest had ever been made before and accepted to. When the newspaper people understood how important it was that we be not followed or disturbed in our work, they left us alone. Their spirit has been fine all the way through."

He had, previously, thought of possible danger to the baby at the lovely farm. "It did not seem possible, however," he said. "Our baby had been widely publicized—probably more than any other in America."

"We are not particularly wealthy," he felt that if anyone even gave the idea a thought that they would quickly realize the uproar which would result and would discover their chances of securing a large sum were not good.

"In that I made my mistake."

BURRAGE AND DEAN SILENT ON NEWS

NORFOLK, Va., May 12.—(UP)—With their assistant, John Hughes Curtis, still absent on another vain effort to negotiate with supposed kidnappers of the Lindbergh baby, two other Norfolk intermediaries tonight refrained from comment on news that the child's body had been found near the Lindbergh home in New Jersey.

Rear Admiral Guy H. Burrage, who has served as spokesman for the trio, said he did not plan to make any comment or to give any information concerning details of the two months of negotiations undertaken by the three men.

Dean H. Dobson-Peacock said he would withhold any comment until after he had seen Mr. Curtis.

Both were shocked at the news and appeared loath to believe at first that the child was dead.

Captain F. H. Lackmann, skipper of the yacht used by the negotiators, said tonight that the boat had been placed at the disposal of Mr. Curtis after "we had been given every possible evidence that Norfolk negotiators were convinced that the baby was alive and would, upon ship at sea."

The yacht, owned by Colonel Charles H. Consovo, of Norfolk, made eight cruises with Captain Lackmann serving as pilot.

Captain Lackmann issued the following formal statement: "I am deeply shocked by the news of the discovery of the Lindbergh baby dead at Hopewell. Apparently his body has been identified beyond all question, and it seems obvious that the child has been alive since the night of the kidnapping or thereabouts."

With the consent of its owner, Colonel Consovo, I placed the yacht Marcon at the disposal of the Norfolk negotiators in the sincere belief that we were being of some assistance in the recovery of the child alive.

"We did this after we had been given every possible evidence that the Norfolk negotiators were convinced that the baby was alive and well, upon a ship at sea."

"We were given every possible assurance that there was no possibility of a change in the identification of the child presumably held captive by the persons negotiating with the Norfolk intermediaries."

"Throughout the maneuvers looking toward a contact with the supposed kidnappers' ship, we had every evidence that every person involved, including Colonel Lindbergh, the father himself, was firmly convinced of the identity of the child sought at sea."

"We regret that we, along with the father of the child, the Norfolk intermediaries and others, including high officials of the United States navy, may apparently have been the victims of a monstrous hoax, the perpetrators of which we hope will be brought to justice along with the murderers of the baby."

Captain Lackmann said he found it hard to believe, knowing what he knew of the case, that the baby found near Hopewell was the Lindbergh baby.

Upon returning from one of his first trips, Mr. Curtis reported that the negotiations had been advanced to the point where the ransom payment of $50,000 was made public, the negotiators expressed the fear that their work had been seriously hampered. They said the payment of the ransom had no connection with their work, though they refused to say whether the recipient of the money was connected with the group with whom they were dealing.

Mr. Curtis continued his airplane trips, leaving the day after the ransom payment to confer with Colonel Lindbergh and to seek another contact. He returned from this trip and announced that he had formed another contact with the "go-between" and that he had been informed that the baby was alive and well.

After making several cruises out to sea, the Norfolk man switched to another scene, leaving by airplane for some northern destination. It was later reported that his activities were centered in the vicinity of Block Island, off the Rhode Island coast. He had not returned tonight from this last trip.

Untiring Labor of Colonel Detailed for First Time

The Lindbergh baby kidnapping led to perhaps the greatest—and most confusing—world-wide search in recent years. The trails, many of them false, led through the shadows of the underworld, to the high seas and to far countries. A veil of secrecy was cast over the isolated Lindbergh home in the Soudland mountains and behind that veil the famous flyer and his associates labored day and night. Many reports of their activities trickled out—so confusing and contradictory that they merely increased the mystery of the mountain home. Now, the story can be told and hereunder the United Press presents a first-hand picture of the Lindbergh home—house of fears and sorrow and desperation—during the most intensive stages of the search.

By H. ALLEN SMITH.

(UP)—Never in the history of America was a private home so quickly and efficiently converted into the directing center of a worldwide search as was Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh's Soudland mountain estate on the day after the kidnapping of the famous flyer's infant son.

The Lindbergh home—a house of sorrow and courage and determination—was transformed overnight and put on a regular "war basis" for the tragic search. Lindbergh himself, in those days when the search settled down to a grim race against time, set an example of courageous leadership and of unwavering determination which required even stronger nerves than he demonstrated in his trans-Atlantic flight. After the first hysterical flurry of the kidnapping, the famous flyer and his wife, Anne Morrow Lindbergh, were convinced that the search might be a long one, and, after a conference with the colonel's close associate, Colonel Henry Breckenridge, the military-like organization was installed.

Search Embraces World.

The ramifications of the search spread rapidly into every state, into the international field—Mexico, Cuba, Canada—and finally to Europe.

To meet the terrific problem caused by the flood of mail, telephone, telegraph and radio messages as well as by the constant arrivals and departures of searchers, Colonel Lindbergh called into conference the New Jersey state police leaders, federal secret service representatives, immigration service police, New York city police and representatives of police of Newark, Trenton, Paterson, Bayonne, Chicago, Detroit and Boston.

On the night following the kidnapping, Colonel Lindbergh told a friend later, there were more than 50 state, municipal and federal detectives and police sleeping on the first floor and in the basement of the house.

A family organization geared to care only for six or seven persons, was suddenly expanded to care for three score police officials, many more visitors and others involved in the search.

"On the day after the kidnapping, we not only fed all the policemen and others at the house, but served a cold lunch to about 100 newspapermen and photographers," Colonel Lindbergh said. "We were glad to do it but our equipment was woefully inadequate at that time."

Arrangements were made with the R. O. T. C. at Princeton University, and mail boxes were secured at the Lindbergh home. A regular staff of state police was installed on three eight-hour shifts. Food was prepared in the police kitchen at Trenton and carried to the Lindbergh home, where it was warmed up. Later the house was more suitably equipped and the commissary began running smoothly.

Wires Increased.

Then came the flood of mail and telephone calls. Every letter had to be read carefully and sympathetically. Many letters were read by every telephone call was given attention.

At first, Colonel Lindbergh and Colonel Breckenridge attempted to handle the telephone calls, but the single circuit to the isolated Lindbergh home was overloaded and long before daylight after the night of the kidnapping was an hour or more of waiting for a telephone call.

The facilities at the Hopewell central office were entirely inadequate and emergency crews were sped in to expand the service. By afternoon the Postal Telegraph Company had leased a temporary office in the Hopewell hotel and the Western Union was expanding their circuits and bringing in extra operators. More than 100,000 telegraph words left Hopewell on the night of March 2. More than 500,000 words went out by telephone.

But the efforts of communication companies to improve the situation failed to take any burden off Colonel Lindbergh's home until after the kidnapping was over.

By the second night 15 complete circuits were installed at the house and garage. In addition the state police put in a teletype printer telegraph machine, which linked the house directly with the New Jersey state police telegraph system. All of these telephone circuits were manned 24 hours a day from the minute of their installation.

At times circuits were cleared of all others and only persons having certain numbers could get through directly to Colonel Lindbergh or Colonel Breckenridge. This was not done in order to apprehend the kidnapers or make it difficult to reach Colonel Lindbergh, but to make sure that, at no time could a call come through without getting prompt attention.

Mail was handled on about the same basis of a large mail order house. The mail was read by state police, who carefully sorted it out. More than 50,000 pieces of mail bearing on the kidnapping were received during the first 50 days after the baby disappeared.

The first communications had gone direct to Colonel Lindbergh through the regular mail channels. One of these was from persons who convinced the Lindberghs they were the kidnapers. Then for many days it was only through letters that the colonel was able to keep in contact with the kidnapers. It was through this method of communication that the basis for the first agreement bearing on the turn of the child was negotiated.

The story of how those letters were received and taken by police officers, detailed to read the mail, to Colonel Lindbergh, how the now famous "Jasie" advertisements were inserted in a Bronx newspaper will some day be one of the most romantic stories of the case.

At the end of the first month of the hunt, more than 132 separate demands for ransom had reached Colonel Lindbergh. Some of the vast amount of work done by the police is illustrated by the fact that each of these communications—some very detailed—were carefully checked.

In addition, there was the regular work of police checking on all possible persons associated with the baby in daily life and on hundreds of suspects who might have had indirect contact with the child. Probably 1,000 persons were questioned in regard to the ladder which was used to enter the baby's nursery.

The study of finger prints took many days and the police even adopted a new method originating in Germany to aid in bringing out partly obliterated prints.

Lindy Worked Always.

For a time Colonel Lindbergh and Colonel Breckenridge worked day and night with police—catching only a few hours sleep. Later, however, they determined it was imperative they organize their own part in the search. Colonel Breckenridge took the daylight shift because he could escape recognition in a crowd, and Colonel Lindbergh took the night side.

Each day and night they alternated in investigations not far from Hopewell. Sometimes Colonel Lindbergh would remain almost continuously at the telephone for as long as 12 hours, getting reports from as far away as San Francisco, Mexico City, London and Glasgow.

Again, dressed in a gray suit and with a light gray cap pulled down over his eyes, he would disappear in his small sedan for midnight conferences in New York, in various parts of New Jersey and elsewhere.

SO YOU'VE TO BRING BURRAGE AND DEAN JOY, DESPAIR TO WORLD SILENT ON NEWS

If the kidnapers wanted to return the infant they could negotiate with Spitalo and Biz and be assured "fair play."

The underworld remained silent. It was said Spitalo was scouring the hangouts of professional kidnapers and racketeers in search for the infant.

Spitalo replied that he was not. He said he wasn't "no cop" and that he was merely willing to negotiate if the kidnapers were willing to avail themselves of his services. They didn't.

Captain Lackmann issued the following formal statement:

"I am deeply shocked by the news of the discovery of the Lindbergh baby dead. I am in the gravest of all questions, and it seems obvious that the child has been dead since the night of the kidnapping or thereabouts."

"With the consent of its owner, Colonel Consolvo, I placed the yacht, the Maroon, at the disposal of the Norfolk negotiators in the sincere belief that we were being of some assistance in the recovery of the child alive."

"We did this after we had been given every possible evidence that the Norfolk negotiators were convinced that the baby was alive and well, upon a ship at sea."

"We were given every possible assurance that there was no possibility of a trap, in the investigation of the child presumably held captive by the persons negotiating with the Norfolk intermediaries."

"Throughout the negotiations, looking toward a contact with the supposed kidnapers' ship, we had every evidence that every person involved, including Colonel Lindbergh, the father himself, was firmly convinced of the identity of the child sought at sea."

"We regret that we, along with the father of the child, the Norfolk intermediaries and others, including high officials of the United States navy, may apparently have been the victims of a monstrous hoax, the perpetrators of which we hope will be brought to justice along with the murderers of the baby."

Captain Lackmann said he found it hard to believe, knowing what he knew of the case, that the baby found near Hopewell was the Lindbergh baby.

Upon returning from one of his first trips, Mr. Curtis reported that the negotiations had been advanced to the semi-final stage. He said, however, when news of the futile ransom payment of $50,000 was made public, the negotiators expressed the fear that their work had been seriously hampered. They said the payment of the ransom had no connection with their work, though they refused to say whether the recipient of the money was connected with the group with whom they were dealing.

Mr. Curtis continued his airplane trips leaving the day after the ransom payment to confer with Colonel Lindbergh and to seek another contact. He returned from this trip and announced that he had formed another contact with the "go-betweens" and that he had been informed that the baby was alive and well.

After making several cruises out to sea, the Norfolk man switched to another scene, leaving by airplane for some northern destination. It was later reported that his activities were centered in the vicinity of Block Island, off the Rhode Island coast. He had not returned tonight from this last trip.

TAXPAYERS WAKING UP

The suggestion of a federal bond issue of $2,300,000,000 for unemployment relief while congress is still stubbornly refusing to materially cut expenses and the burden of taxation is daily being made heavier, illustrates the governmental conditions responsible for the huge deficit which has been created.

The idea seems to be to balance the budget by making more appropriations and by going deeper into debt. It is a policy which would wreck any business in the world.

No wonder that business the country over is warning congress that the era of wasteful extravagance must come to an end, and that surveys conducted by such organizations as the National Economic League, comprised of thousands of business, financial and professional leaders in every state in the Union, reveal that the thinking people of the country regard reduced governmental expenses as the most vital problem facing the nation.

In a poll just completed by this organization, its 5,000 members emphatically designate economy and efficiency in government as the most important problems now facing the country, with reduced taxation in second place.

Striking indication of the change which is taking place in public opinion is to be found in the comparison of the result of this poll with one taken by the league some months ago when first place was given to reparations and second to international debts.

The unprecedented increase in governmental expense during the past 16 years is commented upon in an editorial in the New York Times, which shows that the combined governmental expenditures, federal, state and local, for the fiscal year ended in 1929, as computed by the statisticians of the conference board, amounted to $13,048,000,000, an increase of 3.5 per cent, or $439,000,000, over 1928. This, the statisticians declare, represented a per capita cost of $107.37, as compared with $105.20 in the preceding year. For 16 years, from 1913 to 1929, the cost of all the governments in the United States are asserted to have increased 347 per cent, while in the same period the national income increased 148 per cent and the population only 25.9 per cent.

In other words, the Times says that governmental expenditures grew more than twice as fast as national income, and more than three times as fast as the population.

While billions were being tossed around in Washington as though they were so many millions, the taxpayers of the country remained silent.

But they are waking up! And this applies to cities, states and the nation!

A lot of our alarmists think the rising generation is sinking.

THE WAR ON TUBERCULOSIS

The announcement of an intensive co-operative program throughout the state under the auspices of the Georgia Tuberculosis Association for the dissemination of information on preventive measures against the dread white plague should receive the earnest support of every Georgian.

Fifty years ago the tubercular germ was isolated by Dr. Robert Koch, of Germany, and the semi-centennial of the discovery is being observed this year throughout the entire world in campaigns similar to that to be undertaken in Georgia.

Already the state medical association has appointed doctors to take charge of the work in the various counties and the state health department has instructed every health officer and public health nurse in the state to co-operate. The various local medical societies will hold public meetings during the week of May 15-21.

The last quarter of a century has seen rapid progress toward conquering what for many years had been mankind's most serious enemy, causing more deaths per year than any other disease. A more general knowledge of the disease has contributed largely to the decline of its ravages, and it is for the furtherance of this end that next week has been set aside for a statewide campaign in Georgia.

Bulls are so scarce these days that they would be welcome even in china shops.

WAR CLOUDS AGAIN HOVER

Reports of the continued pouring of Russian troops into eastern Siberia and the transfer of Japanese army corps from Shanghai to Manchuria add to the uneasiness that a conflagration may break out which will relegate the recent Shanghai fighting, as costly as it was in life and money, to the comparative of unimportant skirmishing.

Both Japan and Russia deny warlike intentions, and there are sound economic and political reasons why they should not entertain them at this time; but anything can happen when hundreds of thousands of armed troops are lined up opposite each other with only a disputed border line between, as is now the case in Manchuria.

For soviet Russia, especially, a war with Japan would be a perilous venture. Confronted with the necessity of concentrating her military strength in the far east, her home fronts, especially the Polish border, would be left practically wide open to attack from the disgruntled Balkan nations and the hordes of white Russians who are waiting the right opportunity to strike.

Such an invasion would dynamite the five-year plan and seriously threaten the existence of the soviet government.

It is not probable that the two nations will come to grips unless a sudden spark causes an outbreak of hostilities. The chief danger lies in the fact that such an eruption is far from an improbability in view of the tense situation in Manchuria and the strained relations between Russia and Japan.

Our idea of something worth paying admission to hear would be Hoover explaining what is meant by "senatorial courtesy."

FOR BETTER TRAFFIC LAWS

The intensive program of research on highway accidents proposed by the national conference on street and highway safety is a constructive step towards solving the problem of what to do about the ever-increasing hazards faced by the users of our public thoroughfares.

Through Secretary of Commerce Lamont arrangements have been completed to utilize the facilities of the bureau of public roads in securing basic information on traffic problems, such work being authorized for a federal department under the provision of the highway act providing "for preserving and protecting the highways and insuring the safety of traffic thereon."

The program calls for the investigation of speed regulations, traffic movement regulations, road construction details and pedestrian protection ordinances, the various systems of signs and markings and other accident causes of all kinds. The present multiplicity of conflicting laws in various states is undoubtedly responsible for tourist confusion which, if eliminated, would result in a material lessening of accidents in which automobilists from one state are involved in accidents in other states.

Uniform laws, based on the laws which are now best controlling reckless and dangerous driving, would go far towards bringing safety back to the streets and highways of the nation, and Georgia's state and municipal authorities should give careful consideration to this report when it is announced.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

Was Beethoven A German?

Of course, the Germans have completely appropriated Beethoven by now. He was born in Germany, spoke German and lived a good deal of his life in Vienna. But his name is purely Flemish; Lodewijk Van Beethoven and his parents were Flemish. His character too was Flemish. Compare it with that of Goethe, the epitome of a first-class boulevardier of the nobility, in spite of his greatness.

Van Beethoven belonged to that race which produced the first burgher civilization in Europe. He came from a people whose merchants considered themselves the equal of kings. When the Flemish magistrates were swearing the oath of allegiance to Philip II and they saw the noblemen in front of them kneeling down during the ceremony they refused to follow the example. "We Flemings kneel only to God," they said.

In France they were present at the marriage of a queen, thereto invited by Louis XIII. At one of the festivals, the cardinals, princes of the blood and ambassadors in all their glory stood waiting for Louis. The Flemings sat down in the same hall to the king. When the ushers remonstrated and asked them for their titles they answered, the one: "I sell cloth in Bruges" and the other: "I am a master painter, head of the guild at Antwerp."

Nothing could be done about it. Walking with Goethe once in the gardens of Vienna, they saw the imperial party approaching. Goethe took to his heels and ran. The Flemings, however, stood in hand, bowed and scraping. Beethoven walked on quite calmly without giving the princes as much as a glance.

Goethe never forgave him for this. Of course, he was born in Germany. But I don't know whether that makes him a German or not. Is a child born in a chicken coop a chicken?

French-German Hatred

"Never" is the only answer the French have hitherto given to all pleas and urgings for a revision of the Treaty of Versailles. "The treaties are sacred. Never will we agree to their curtailment," they say.

We have heard this time and again. And yet there is a good deal of bluff about this assurance. There has been quite a bit of tampering with the Treaty of Versailles the last 10 years. Does anyone in France think today of bringing President Hindenburg, or Germany, before a military tribunal for atrocities committed during the war? Yet, he stands at the list of 200 "crimes."

Reparation payments have steadily been reduced on American initiative. Then the Rhine has been evacuated. Then the Rhine treaty stipulations. It was Briand who welcomed Germany in the League of Nations. No, the treaties are crumbling before our very eyes. One thing remains to be done. If France would agree, voluntarily, to scrap that clause about "Germany's guilt," the battle would be won and a new era would dawn in Franco-German relations.

This clause is still called a "moral clause" but morally it has no value, for it was wormed out of Germany at the point of the bayonet.

Georgia Heroes Of the World War

By Sergeant L. E. Jaekel (All Rights Reserved.)

JAMES M. MCKIBBIN, captain, medical corps, attached to the 306th machine gun battalion, Seventeenth division, American Expeditionary Force, awarded the Distinguished Service Cross for extraordinary heroism in action with the enemy near Cheveries, France, October 13, 1918.

During a very heavy artillery barrage which lasted for approximately two hours, Captain McKibbin displayed great coolness and courage in dressing and administering first aid to the wounded. Informed that a sergeant had been wounded and was lying between our lines and the enemy's lines, he went to administer first aid to him.

While in the performance of these duties under intense fire he was wounded by machine gun fire and later died from the effects of these wounds.

Residence at appointment, Hamilton, Ga. Posthumously awarded Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Mary McKibbin.

REYNOLDS NEARS END OF WORLD AIR JAUNT

SEATTLE, May 12.—(AP)—Smith Reynolds, 20, son of the late R. R. Reynolds, tobacco magnate, arrived yesterday by liner from Hong Kong on the last lap of a round-the-world air and water trip.

In December he shipped his plane from New York to England and then began a 12,000-mile flight through southern Europe and southern Asia to Hong Kong. He said he found flying costs high in Italy, paying 80 cents a gallon at one airport for gas.

His plane will be reassembled here and he will take off for New York next week, he said.

To Teach Savages To Be Saints You Must First Teach Them To Be Men

By Robert Quillen

Before the Wright brothers built their first plane, men of understanding said to one another: "If a flying machine should suddenly appear on the earth, nobody would know how to fly it."

Sons of the rich lost their inheritance quickly because they did not grow as it did. It is only by building a fortune that a man develops the strength to hold it.

Freedom may be given to an undeveloped people; a teacher's favorite may be given undeserved promotion; a factory owner's untrained son may be placed in charge of production; but the result in every instance is disastrous, for those who cannot win an advantage are not qualified to hold it.

What is true of machines and fortunes and all advantages is equally true of ideas.

The ethical standards of the white man are meaningless and unprofitable to the savage. Only the race that develops an idea has the wit to comprehend and use it.

In process of evolution the race develops exceptional men who are centuries ahead of their times.

The teachings of such men shape the destiny of mankind, but they never are whom the world grows up to them.

The teachings of Christ were the basis of modern civilization, but the world accepts them only "in principle." Christianity is a beautiful ideal, but it is practiced nowhere because the race hasn't yet grown up to it.

Jesus taught complete unselfishness. The earliest Christians, accepting his teachings as literal rules of living, established a society of perfect communism. They had no selfish and greedy. And the plan failed because men were selfish and greedy. They hadn't grown up to it.

The most ardent supporter of capitalism will agree that perfect communism—which has nothing in common with Russia's "dictatorship of the proletariat"—would be the ideal solution of all earthly problems.

All men purged of selfishness, despising personal gain, and devoid of all ambition except a desire to help one another—each doing his part in labor—that would make the world a better place.

But perfect communism requires perfect men. The race hasn't grown up to it.

We must deal with facts and work with the tools we have. Wishing won't alter reality.

The able idealist who labors to make a silk purse of a sow's ear is well advised to quit right now. He is wasting his time and his energy in business of raising better pigs.

Roosevelt Told Midwest, Disgusted, Will Quit G. O. P.

BY WALTER T. BROWN, Associated Press Staff Writer.

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., May 12.—Henry Morgenthau Jr., publisher of the New York Herald Tribune, a conservation commissioner, after an airplane trip through the midwest agricultural belt, advised Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt today that the economic depression had left the farmers "numb" and ready to desert the republican party for a new leader.

Morgenthau's trip carried him into 10 states and as far west as Oklahoma and into St. Paul of the northwest.

Roosevelt was not inclined to comment upon the relief program enunciated by Senator Roosevelt, a vocal leader in the senate, carrying a bond issue of $2,000,000,000 for public works and $300,000,000 for personal relief.

The governor insisted he had been so busy he had not had time "even to look over the newspaper accounts" of the relief program. He said he was "disgusted with the present administration and its efforts to relieve agriculture."

Morgenthau said he talked only with farm editors and agricultural teachers in his western swing and had seen no politicians. The best farm situation, he said, he found in the northwest, where sentiment is that if not alone by Washington, farmers can improve their condition by taking advantage of the government.

"Farmers are numbed by the situation," Morgenthau declared. "Declining prices and lack of a market have left the farmer without a way out from their government. Mortgage holders are voluntarily reducing mortgages in order to keep them on the farm. In one instance a farmer agreed to reduce his mortgage by 50 per cent because he could not meet the interest on a $7,000 mortgage. When asked to fix his own value on the mortgage, the farmer reduced it to $4,000."

"I reminded my hosts in Iowa, Kansas and Minnesota that every four years the political revolution comes around and every time farmers in the republican party are voluntarily reducing mortgages in order to keep them on the farm. In one instance a farmer agreed to reduce his mortgage by 50 per cent because he could not meet the interest on a $7,000 mortgage. When asked to fix his own value on the mortgage, the farmer reduced it to $4,000."

Long Launches Fiery Attack On Hoover and Robinson

WASHINGTON, May 12.—(UP)—Senator Huey Long, democrat, Louisiana, moved from his rear-row seat in the senate today, and, in a speech in which he mixed his metaphors and scrambled his tenets, attacked President Hoover, Minority Leader Joseph Robinson, of Arkansas; Bernard Baruch and Eugene Meyer, governor of the federal reserve board.

He said Mr. Hoover and Robinson were "under the same shining banner and were trying to impose starvation, pestilence and disease" upon the country.

The galleries filled quickly as Long, his hair dragging into his eyes and a handkerchief clutched in his hand, told the senate he was "just sitting here and listening to Hooverism spouting through two foghorns." He appeared to be talking to Robinson and Senator James Watson, republican, Indiana, majority leader.

Senator David Reed, republican, Pennsylvania, leaped to his feet. "I suggest," he shouted, "that the senator from Louisiana is violating Rule 19."

The rule forbids personal attacks on another senator. Senator John J. Blaine, republican, Wisconsin, defended Long's right to proceed and a vote was taken. Long won, and grinned at Reed as he got back on his feet and resumed the speech.

The controversy between Long and Robinson started when the minority leader refused to support the Louisiana senator's resolution to limit the income of any person to $100,000 a year. Long resigned all his committee memberships, but today announced he would be "a committee of one."

Democratic action today came as Long swung into his subject and the republicans obviously were enjoying this latest uprising among the demagogues. Long's remarks were so heated that his rhetoric grew erratic.

"This senate don't want to do that," he said, repeating his fingers carrying designs in the air.

"Who is this fellow Baruch? You can't decide him to the democratic party. He's got a partner in some sort of racketeering racket shop in New York, but it's a legitimate business. This partner is Eugene Meyer and now he's on the federal reserve board. All of them are right with Hoover, but I'm not going to sit around here and hear these verbal spangings from the White House."

Long waved a cartoon clipped from the Chicago Tribune, depicting him as a soviet cap standing under a flag while Robinson was standing beneath an American flag. The caption read: "This is the Question—Sovietism or Americanism."

Long Launches Fiery Attack On Hoover and Robinson

WASHINGTON, May 12.—(UP)—Senator Huey Long, democrat, Louisiana, moved from his rear-row seat in the senate today, and, in a speech in which he mixed his metaphors and scrambled his tenets, attacked President Hoover, Minority Leader Joseph Robinson, of Arkansas; Bernard Baruch and Eugene Meyer, governor of the federal reserve board.

He said Mr. Hoover and Robinson were "under the same shining banner and were trying to impose starvation, pestilence and disease" upon the country.

The galleries filled quickly as Long, his hair dragging into his eyes and a handkerchief clutched in his hand, told the senate he was "just sitting here and listening to Hooverism spouting through two foghorns." He appeared to be talking to Robinson and Senator James Watson, republican, Indiana, majority leader.

Senator David Reed, republican, Pennsylvania, leaped to his feet. "I suggest," he shouted, "that the senator from Louisiana is violating Rule 19."

The rule forbids personal attacks on another senator. Senator John J. Blaine, republican, Wisconsin, defended Long's right to proceed and a vote was taken. Long won, and grinned at Reed as he got back on his feet and resumed the speech.

The controversy between Long and Robinson started when the minority leader refused to support the Louisiana senator's resolution to limit the income of any person to $100,000 a year. Long resigned all his committee memberships, but today announced he would be "a committee of one."

Democratic action today came as Long swung into his subject and the republicans obviously were enjoying this latest uprising among the demagogues. Long's remarks were so heated that his rhetoric grew erratic.

"This senate don't want to do that," he said, repeating his fingers carrying designs in the air.

"Who is this fellow Baruch? You can't decide him to the democratic party. He's got a partner in some sort of racketeering racket shop in New York, but it's a legitimate business. This partner is Eugene Meyer and now he's on the federal reserve board. All of them are right with Hoover, but I'm not going to sit around here and hear these verbal spangings from the White House."

KITCHEN TESTED RECIPES

by Sally Saver

All the way from New York comes a letter from one of my readers . . . Sally you are becoming widely read. The letter is given herewith . . . 83-10 35th Avenue, Jackson Heights, New York, April 13, 1932.

Dear Sally Saver:

Please be kind enough to be a "life saver" and send me all recipes you have for banana dishes. I read in my daily Constitution of your generosity so am taking advantage of it. Appreciating your kindness, I am,

Sincerely,

MRS. B. K. PORTER.

And now, Mrs. Porter, it is my pleasure to give you eight of the newest banana recipes which I have in my files. I trust that these are what you want.

Try Bananas Broiled With Bacon. Cut each banana in two pieces. Roll a strip of bacon around each piece and skewer with a toothpick. Place on broiler in hot oven. When bacon is crisp and brown on one side, turn over and broil the other side. This dish is easily prepared and wonderfully delicious. Makes an ideal Sunday morning dish, is a "company treat" and is as joy as the main dish for a quick luncheon or dinner.

A Breakfast Cocktail. For each person, slice a half to a whole banana in a glass and cover with orange juice. Try this for breakfast. It's a combination of flavors that's hard to beat! Also makes an unusual fruit cocktail as the first course for dinner. When used for this purpose, serve in sherbert glass as shown in the illustration at the right.

Banana Ambrosia.

Cut up and mix thoroughly 2 bananas, 1 cup grapes, 1 orange and 2 pineapple rings. Chill before serving. If desired, add a sprinkling of sugar. Serves three. This quickly prepared dish furnishes an attractive way to serve the fresh fruit which adds so much to the health value of any meal. May be used either as a fruit cup at the beginning of a meal or as a dessert at the end.

Bananas With Chops. Peel bananas, dip in beaten egg and crumbs, and fry in deep, hot fat. Alternate on chop plate with broiled or fried chops, and garnish. Serve as a tempting main dish for today's dinner. Bananas are also delicious with ham and steak.

Bake This Tasty Brown Betty. For six servings, use 4 bananas and 1 package of Zwieback, rolled into fine crumbs, or 2 1/2 cups stale cake crumbs. Alternate layers of Zwieback and thinly sliced bananas. On top of each layer of banana sprinkle brown sugar, pieces of butter and orange juice. Add enough milk to half fill the pudding dish. Bake covered 15 minutes in moderate oven (375 degree Fahrenheit). Uncover and brown before serving.

Banana Pie.

Mix 3/4 cup sugar, 1/3 cup flour, 1/8 teaspoon salt. Add 2 eggs lightly beaten, and pour on gradually 2 cups scalded milk. Cook 15 minutes in double boiler, stirring constantly until thickened. Spread immediately. Cool and add 1 teaspoon vanilla. Put in cooked pie-shell, add 3 sliced bananas and 1/2 cup whipped cream.

Banana Bran Muffins.

Soak 1 cup bran in 1 cup sour milk. Cream together 2 tablespoons shortening and 4 tablespoons sugar. Add 1 egg and beat well. Mix and sift 1 1/2 cups flour, 1/2 teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon baking powder and 1/4 teaspoon salt. Mix with the creamed mixture, alternately with the soaked bran. Add 3/4 cup sliced banana and teaspoon cinnamon. Bake in moderately hot oven (400 degree Fahrenheit) about 25 minutes. Makes 12 muffins.

Candlestick Salad.

For each serving, place 1 pineapple ring on lettuce leaf. Put the end of a peeled banana to fit into the hole of the pineapple. Garnish with mayonnaise and place a red cherry on top. If preferred, whipped cream may be used.

There has been much talk lately of various methods of reducing, and one of the best I have seen is that of the home economics department of the Kellogg Company at Battle Creek, Mich. This method is given, for those who wish to use it.

Why Reduce?

Overweight means overwork. Each extra pound puts a strain on the heart and kidneys. Rarely is a person of normal weight a victim of diabetes—the too fat man or woman is the one attacked.

Watch your weight and keep well.

Some Points for Reducing.

There are several factors which count when a person decides to reduce:

1. The amount of food eaten daily, to lose weight this should be reduced.
2. Laxative foods should be chosen.
3. Food low in calories should be selected.
4. There must be a strong will to reduce.
5. The plan decided upon must be strictly adhered to.
6. Plenty of water should be taken.

SUDDEN ATTACK FATAL

TO E. A. McMILLAN, 60

E. A. McMillan, well-known Atlanta property owner, dropped dead Thursday afternoon while strolling through the fields of his farm near McDonough. He had just finished his lunch and was walking about the farm for exercise when he was stricken with acute indigestion, it was said. He was 60 years old.

Mr. McMillan was born and reared near McDonough, though he had resided here for years at the Princeton hotel. He was the owner of a large block of property and stores on Mitchell near Forsyth street and operated one store. His holdings in farm land in his native county also was extensive, it was said.

Funeral services will be conducted at 1:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon in McDonough, and interment will be in West View cemetery here at 3 o'clock.

Surviving Mr. McMillan are two brothers, J. A. McMillan, of McDonough, and F. M. McMillan, of Fingerville, S. C., and two sisters, Mrs. Fannie Williams, of Irwin, S. C., and Mrs. Eliza Morgan, of Greer, South Carolina.

PLAY WILL SHOW

ADVERTISING IDEAS

A one-act play, covering advertising problems of interest to retailers, will feature the membership meeting of the Atlanta Retail Merchants' Association Thursday evening next at 6:30 o'clock at Rich's restaurant. The play, written by L. A. Stratus Jr., Mrs. A. C. Morgan and Dr. Sinclair Jacobs, all of whom have had a great deal of experience in the advertising field, are in charge of the program.

Leading advertising people of Atlanta will be the principal characters in the play, which will be humorous as well as educational. This is the first time that a program of this nature has ever been attempted by the association, and the notices sent out regarding the meeting have created widespread interest.

The main feature of the meeting will be preceded by a dinner, musical entertainment, general singing and one or two brief business reports.

The association numbers among its membership retailers engaged in practically all lines of business in Atlanta, and under the able leadership of J. T. Allen, president, and the other officers, it is enjoying a most successful year, both from the standpoint of service rendered and of maintaining its membership.

"BENEFITS" STAGED

HERE BY PROMOTERS

Positive proof exists in the files of the Atlanta Retail Merchants' Association that promoters actually solicit worthy organization for the privilege of putting on, in the names of those organizations, the dances and entertainments to which tickets are sold to the public, the association announced Thursday.

Recently in Atlanta a promoter offered a well known organization $250 for the privilege of putting on a benefit ball in the name of that organization for the purpose of aiding the unemployed. A promoter paid $3,000 to the Municipal Court Attendants' Association of New York city for the privilege of staging a year ball of the association and publishing a year book. According to the Better Business Bureau of New York city, the profit of the promoter was $23,800 exclusive of commissions.

Similar promotions, on a smaller scale, are being put on in Atlanta in the names of various organizations. Usually telephone solicitation is resorted to. Always the person being solicited is led to believe that the proceeds are going to the organization in whose name it is being sponsored. Promoters, the association said, maintain what they call "sucker lists," containing the names of people who respond readily to solicitations of this kind. It was to regulate promotions of this kind that an ordinance was passed recently by city council, to become effective June 1, 1932.

RALPH DUNWOODY ENDS OWN LIFE NEAR MACON

Veteran Secretary-Treasurer of Telegraph Found Dead of Pistol Shot

MACON, Ga., May 12.—(AP)—R. Ralph Dunwoody, secretary-treasurer of the Macon Telegraph, who had been in ill health for many years, was found shot to death today near a road three miles from Macon.

He appeared at his office this morning, wrote a note to P. T. Anderson, vice president and general manager of the Telegraph, and left. Mr. Anderson arrived later and went to the scene where Mr. Dunwoody said he could be found and discovered him dead with a bullet wound in the right temple.

Mr. Dunwoody was a Spanish-American War veteran and was active in fraternal life of the city. He was a member of a prominent middle Georgia family. He had been connected with the Telegraph for many years. Friends on the Telegraph said he had been a sufferer from sinus trouble for many years and had been the victim of violent headaches.

He owned the land on which he was found shot. His second wife, the former Miss Bessie Carson, of Butler, Ga., a son by a former wife, Robert Dunwoody, of New York city, and a number of other relatives survive.

Dunwoody was 54 years old. His mother, Mrs. A. T. Dunwoody, and sister, Mrs. J. W. Glover, both of Marietta, and three brothers, W. E. and Ike, of Macon, and J. Marion Dunwoody, of Eatonton, also survive.

"There Is a Cure for Athlete's Foot! I Say So," Says Lifeguard

WHEN that doughty lifeguard and famous star half-mile runner MacDowell read in the papers that Harvard's biologists, zoologists and physiologists were going to work in their new $2,000,000 laboratory to find "a cure for Athlete's Foot!"

"There is a cure!" he declared. "I contracted Athlete's Foot myself. Heaven knows where I got it, but I think I caught it from a shower bath floor at some swimming pool. Believe me, I was pestered with it. I tried all sorts of remedies for it—everything anyone would suggest—but nothing did any good. I began to think it was incurable, and resolved to make the best of it."

"Well, a while ago I happened to read the label on a bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil, and I noticed that it said antiseptic—germicidal—penetrating oil. I thought to myself, 'That ought to be a good for Athlete's Foot, because it sure is a germicide.' I used Emerald Oil only 3 weeks and I HAVE NO MORE ITCH."

"To think that I have been battling all these years and couldn't get any relief! But now I have found a cure, and Harvard's research can be devoted to other unsolved problems. For I say Moone's Emerald Oil is a cure for Athlete's Foot."

One bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil is guaranteed to banish every trace of Athlete's Foot or money refunded. Jacobs Pharmacy and other first-class druggists the country over sell gallons of Emerald Oil all the time with that positive assurance of relief.—(adv.)

WAYCROSS, Ga., May 12.—(AP)—Cora Gorman, alias Cora Hazen, on stand for her life for the alleged slaying of her husband, Jim Parker, told the jury that she was an innocent woman, laying the blame for the murder on the state had rested its case.

Mrs. Hazen, who several months ago was acquitted on a charge of killing Mrs. Parker's baby, told the jury that she was an innocent woman, laying the blame for the murder on the state had rested its case.

Parker and the Hazen woman were living together as man and wife on a small farm near here in the spring of 1930. The state contends that the real Mrs. Parker and her infant child appeared on the scene, coming from the house, and were murdered and buried in a pea field back of the farmhouse.

Parker and Hazen were indicted jointly for the crime and were tried separately for the murder of the baby. Parker was sent to the electric chair, his execution having taken place several weeks ago. Mrs. Hazen now is being tried for the woman's death.

THOMASVILLE, Ga., May 12.—The finishing touches were given late this evening to the arrangement of the interior of the newly constructed building that will tomorrow house the 1932 annual Thomasville Rose Show. At daylight Friday morning those who will have exhibits in the show will begin the task of arranging their flowers and by 11 o'clock the 11th annual rose show will be opened to the public, and will remain open until 10 p. m.

The Rose Show this year is in the largest building that ever housed it, and the most conveniently arranged structure for that purpose, having been erected this spring as a permanent home for the show with funds locally subscribed. The new building, too, is better ventilated than any of the buildings in which the show has been held in previous years, and on the outside there is a greater parking place for the thousands of automobiles that annually bring folk here for this flower exhibit.

RUSSELL DELAYS ACTION ON DOBBS

Plea of Convicted Ex-Alderman Is Taken Under Advisement.

Governor Richard B. Russell Jr. late Thursday afternoon took under advisement a plea made by attorneys of W. Guy Dobbs, former city alderman, for a commutation of a 12-month prison sentence to a fine of $1,000. Dobbs was convicted of bribery in city graft trials.

Henry Troutman and Paul S. Etheridge, Atlanta lawyers, appeared in behalf of Dobbs. Solicitor-General John A. Boykin did not make a personal appearance in the case but the record contained a new letter from him written May 12 to Governor Russell.

In this letter, Boykin said: "You will find in the file a letter from me to the prison commission wherein I have stated that I opposed clemency being extended to Guy Dobbs because of the nature and character of the case, that is, a case of a public official accepting a bribe."

The solicitor-general had written the prison commission on March 16: "I am opposed to clemency because of the nature of the offense. However, on account of the strong showing made for clemency I shall be content with whatever your conscience dictates."

After the original compromise plea was submitted to the commission, Dobbs was given a respite of 30 days at the request of the commission. This was subsequently extended 15

Skidding Soap Cake Brings Honor to Girl

NEW YORK, May 12.—(AP)—Anger at a skidding soap cake on a tiled bathroom floor gave 9-year-old Kathryn Freibusch the idea which makes her now, at 11, the youngest inventor at the fourth international patent exhibition at the Grand Central Palace.

The soap slipped out of her hand while she was taking a bath one day, and slid clear out of reach. "I didn't want to get out of the tub and get it," she explained gravely. "But you see I am the only woman in my family, and I couldn't get it for me. My mother died four years ago, and I have three brothers and I have to take care of myself."

So Kathryn bored two holes in that bothersome soap cake with a big drawing needle, and ran a cord through them to hold on to. The device became so popular in the family the girl's father decided to patent it.

days, also at the request of the commission.

On April 22, the commission recommended that the governor commute the sentence to a fine. As the second reprieve would have ended the next day, the governor of his own motion issued a third reprieve order. Inability to arrange a hearing prior to Saturday caused the governor then to issue a fourth reprieve order.

BEWARE! BEWARE! YE SUPERSTITIOUS, IT'S FRIDAY, 13TH

Many a black cat will draw a suspicious eye today and perhaps a few of the more superstitious will decline to invite disaster by handling salt shakers—for it is Friday, 13th, a day dreaded by many since the ancient custom of setting the day as the time when hagsmen would ply their trade.

There are many who decline to engage in hazardous affairs on any Friday, but along one with the appendage of 13 on the calendar, they will tell you that upsetting a salt shaker, breaking a mirror, opening an umbrella in the house, whistling, walking under ladders or in the wake of a black cat will bring certain disaster.

While there is perhaps no certain knowledge of how Friday 13th became known as the bearer of ill luck, most authorities assert that the olden day habit of executing criminals, "witches" and others accounts for the evil attributed to the day.

Of course there will be those hardy ones who delight in defying superstition—but they will be much in the minority. For certainly, the troublous days furnish enough ill fortune to discourage deliberate invitations to the rulers of the nether world.

High Pressure Area Causes 'Cold Spell'

"How come, Mr. von Herrmann, how come?" That is the question all Atlantans are asking about the cold spell and it is the question put to him Thursday night when he declared that today will be fair and cool but not quite as cool as Thursday.

He asserted that there is a high pressure area over the Mississippi valley and a low pressure area with rain over Charleston, S. C., and all because the low pressure area stays where it is the high pressure area brings in the wind from the northwest, which shifts the low pressure area and just naturally causes Georgians and Floridians a little discomfort.

"It is this steady wind from the northwest which is making things cool," he declared.

However, despite the fact that the temperature is 10 degrees under the normal mercury reading for this time of the year, Thursday's low of 52 degrees was not the lowest Atlanta has had by a long shot. The mercury fell to 38 degrees on May 7, 1898. Thursday's maximum was 66 degrees. Today's low should be about 55 degrees and the maximum 70 degrees, he declared.

Radio Team at Empire As Added Attraction

Friday the Empire theater has a splendid attraction. "West of Broadway" will be on the screen, while at 8 o'clock the stage will be turned over to the famous radio team "Griff and Hil," who will present some unusual entertainment in song, dance and chatter.

'Grand Hotel' Crowds Greater Every Day

With the crowds that are thronging to Loew's Grand theater to see the tremendous road show production of "Grand Hotel," increasing with every performance, the importance of securing seats in advance of the hour for the picture is demonstrated more forcibly every day.

Two performances are given daily, at 2:30 and 8:30, and the picture starts promptly at each. This means that ticket buyers who are still in line before the box office at 2:30 or 8:30 unavoidably miss that part of the picture shown while they wait their turn to purchase tickets and are shown to their place in the theater.

Every seat in the house is reserved and the ticket office is open all day.

of war and taken from his peaceful village nestling at the feet of the craggy peaks, is placed with a band of comrades atop Mount Collalto, a strategic Austrian defense against the onslaught of the Italians. In view of their homes, they are unable to visit them because they are occupied by Italian troops, under the command of Louis Trenker, who Varconi had accompanied on climbing expeditions before the war.

Trenker, whose headquarters are in the home of Varconi, with his wife, Tala Birell, and the baby Varconi has never seen, is directing the drilling into the mountain which is to undermine and blow up the doomed battalion of Austrians on the mountain, who have orders to stick to their posts to the last. Varconi as a final hope is allowed to go by night by the explosion is to occur, and return with the information, that the Austrians might escape destruction at the last moment. His companions, waiting in suspense and knowing the strong hold Varconi's home and wife and child will have on him, doubt if he will return to save them. That is the climax. The photography is unusually good. The snow-covered mountains with men maneuvering on skis offers an extraordinary spectacle apart from the theme. Between the lines there has been injected a musical orchestration which makes the film more pleasing. Andy Clyde is comical in a bit called "Heaven, My Husband," and Mickey Mouse and his darling Minnie in a heroic cartoon epic, "Barn Yard Olympics," are more hilarious than ever.

Million and a Half Persons Pay Doumer Final Tribute

BY REYNOLDS PACKARD.

PARIS, May 12.—(UP)—The great bells of Notre Dame tolled slowly and the melancholy beat of muffled drums sounded in the streets of Paris today as France buried her Doumer, thirteenth president of the republic. Eight black horses drew the hearse while a million and a half persons stood in final tribute to the assassinated executive.

A king, prince of the blood, famous statesman and diplomat followed the hearse from Elysee palace to the cathedral. Overhead the somber skies reflected the funeral atmosphere of the capital. The funeral cortege came from all parts of France for the service.

About 10,000 persons participated in the funeral which stretched from the presidential palace to Notre Dame and was comparable only to the great demonstration of sympathy and admiration when Marshal Foch was buried.

Behind the hearse were six funeral cars, loaded with wreaths sent by dignitaries, including President Hoover, and the French ambassador in London. Thousands of troops in dress uniform marched behind the cars to the slow beat of drums and the sound of muffled drums.

Behind the soldiers came robed barbers, and members of the academies and then Premier Andre Tardieu and President Albert Lebrun, marching with members of the Doumer family. And with them were the representatives of two score governments. The Prince of Wales, Albert, king of the Belgians, the Duke of Aosta, Prince Paul of Serbia, American Ambassador Walter E. Edge and many others.

Troops with fixed bayonets shouldered to shoulder along the two-mile route, where detectives were scattered thickly through the crowd to prevent disturbances.

Agon men and women knelt as the procession approached, passed by and moved slowly on to Notre Dame. Along the route many war veterans joined the procession in tribute to the man who gave four sons to France during the war and then, at the peak of a long career, sacrificed his own life because a crazed Russian saw him as the symbol of the nation he wished to drag into a war with soviet Russia.

Fifty thousand persons knelt before the cathedral, where gas lamps and black crepe drapings created a ghostly atmosphere even in daylight. About 2,000 persons crowded into the cathedral, where Cardinal Verdier officiated at high mass while the coffin rested on a catafalque under a high, black crown.

suspended in the central nave. Troops passed in review before the catafalque, some 5,000 men of France marching at salute under leadership of the grizzled Marshal Foch.

Temporarily Doumer rested at the Pantheon—beside the ashes of Victor Hugo, Voltaire, Zola—but later the coffin was removed to Vaugirard cemetery at the request of the widow. There at a simple ceremony which was not announced because of the family's desire for privacy, the murdered president was buried beside two of the four sons who fell on the battlefield.

Mme. Doumer wept as she stood beside the granite vault and tears streamed from the eyes of Premier Tardieu.

One wreath of the thousands sent by sympathetic admirers of the president was selected and placed on the vault. It was of red tulips and violets, and Mme. Doumer collapsed mentally as she knelt before it and kissed the cold stone of the vault.

ILLEGAL P. O. DEAL CHARGED TO NEW

Documents Presented to Committee Charges Unlawful Awards.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—(AP)—Documents representing that former Postmaster General Nease, in 1928 aided in securing from financial difficulties an unsuccessful bidder for a postal lease who later withdrew charges that the contract was illegally awarded were presented today to a senate committee.

Correspondence was laid before the senate postal lease investigating committee charging that the lease was awarded to a "close friend of Nease's" and that the other bidder was threatening a congressional inquiry on the grounds that the contract was illegal.

The lease, for the Back Bay station in Boston, was awarded to R. D. Brown, of Indianapolis, at an annual rental of $66,000 for 10 years. Chester W. Hanson, one of the unsuccessful bidders, protested.

The correspondence was from the files of P. W. Chapman and Company, of New York and Chicago, Brown, who was on the stand, testified that Hanson was under financial obligations to the Chapman firm to the extent of $15,000, but he denied that New had ever negotiated with him to aid Hanson.

One letter from the New York to the Chicago office of the Chapman firm said after Hanson protested to New and threatened a congressional investigation he was called to the postmaster general's office to explain his attitude.

Brown testified that the financing of the lease was awarded to the Chapman company, but said he had made the arrangements before Hanson filed his protest. The witness denied ever talking with New about the financing and called Hanson a "big liar."

A later letter from R. W. Swart, of the New York office of the Chapman firm, to the Chicago office, read: "I would certainly take very seriously the commitment of Postmaster General Nease that he would get this financing if Hanson would release."

claim he has on the postmaster general's office, resulting from their method of conducting negotiations."

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul. Skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Beware of substitutes. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.
